600 Army and Navy Planes to Be Released to Allied Powers

2 Services Offer Formal Approval to New Policy

AIDS DEFENSE

Believe Move Clears Way For Aircraft Industry Expansion

Washington — (P) — The army and navy stood aside today to give France and Britain virtually unimpeded access to the latest models of American warplanes.

The two services formally agreed late yesterday on the new export policy, acting on the belief that national defense would best be served by the consequent expansion of the nation's aircraft industry and by the vigorous testing which American-developed ships will receive in Europe's aerial war.

Barring congressional interference, officials said the new policy forecast these immediate results:

1. Release to the allies of some 600 planes now under construction for the army or navy.

2. Acceleration in the placing of an expected $1,000,000,000 in Franco-British aircraft orders.

Secretary of War Woodring is expected to submit a detailed explanation of the new army-navy stand when he appears tomorrow before the house military committee investigating foreign plane purchases here. The previous policy had been not to release any military craft for sale until a better type had been perfected.

Won't Sell Secrets

Officials emphasized that no secret military devices would be supplied with the planes. President Roosevelt said recently that the country possessed some secrets which foreign nations presumably cannot duplicate.

Besides turning over to the allies planes already under construction, officials said the new policy would permit the placing of orders for the latest army and navy experimental ships, hitherto withheld.

The allies, on their part, would be required to furnish complete data on the performance of the planes in active service in order that subsequent models may be improved for the benefit of American air forces.

Another stipulation requires a guarantee that the allies will not manufacture planes of American design in Europe. This is to safeguard the domestic aviation industry and the employment of aircraft workers.

Fight 'Destructive Influences' in Homes.

Dry Leader's Appeal

Madison — (P) — Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin of New York, national vice-president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, today urged women to mobilize "to defend their homes from destructive influences."

Opening a two-day conference of Wisconsin and Illinois members, Mrs. Colvin declared:

"We are here to prepare ourselves for active service in defense of our homes. We have the privilege of being the shock troops."

"It is not too much to say that today there is not a home in all this broad land that is safe from the assaults of the legalized liquor traffic."

"Time was when you had to go to the saloon to find liquor; today it comes along with your grocery order."

Mrs. Colvin asserted that 10,000 local W.C.T.U. chapters should be prepared for "active service" and that because "the liquor traffic today is safeguarded by the law," members should "go after it with your votes."

Cromwell Expects to Remain as Minister

Ottawa — (P) — James H. R. Cromwell, returning from a brief visit to his New Jersey home, today declared he had "no other plans than to continue the duties of my office as American minister to Canada."

A statement issued by the United States envoy said "the last word" had been said by Secretary Hull in rebuking Cromwell for his Toronto speech expressing sympathy for the allied cause, a speech which aroused a storm of criticism in the United States.

QUESTIONED ABOUT USE OF PRESIDENT'S NAME

Chairman Martin Dies (right) of the house committee investigating un-American activities, took over the questioning of James H. Dolsen (left) after the witness, who described himself as a Communist employed as a teacher on WPA workers' education projects in Pittsburgh, testified that one of his fellow Communists used the name "Franklin D. Roosevelt" as his party pseudonym. Dies is holding a Communist membership book made out in the president's name which Dolsen identified as one of his possessions.

Expects Senate To Extend Trade Agreements Plan

Harrison Makes Prediction After Conference With Roosevelt

Washington — (P) — Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee predicted after a conference with President Roosevelt today that legislation to extend the reciprocal trade agreements program would be passed by the senate unamended within 10 days.

"We've got a close fight," Harrison said, "but the chances are the amendments will be defeated and the bill will be passed unamended."

Harrison said he "appreciated the president of the situation" and that Mr. Roosevelt "is of course intensely anxious that the Pittman amendment and all others be defeated. Senator Pittman (D-Neb.) is sponsoring an amendment to require senate ratification of trade pacts."

That amendment, Harrison asserted, would "make it impossible to carry on the program of reciprocal trade agreements."

Turning to another subject, Harrison said he believed there would be no tax bill at this session, although he had not taken up that matter with Mr. Roosevelt. He said, too, he was hopeful congress would adjourn by June 1.

At the capitol, Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) asserted in debate that 19 of the 22 countries with which the United States had signed trade agreements submitted them to legislative approval before they could become effective.

In this country, he said, ratification involves a constitutional question which transcended party lines. The agreements now go into operation with the approval of the secretary of state and the president. McCarran and others argue that they are really formal treaties and therefore constitutionally subjected to ratification.

McCarran said he believed that the proposal to continue the trade program without ratification struck at the heart of constitutional government and by taking away from congress the taxing power involved in tariff changes. He declared there was a trend toward formation of a new political group aimed at preserving constitutional powers.

Census Will Give Data On U. S. Unemployment

Washington — (P) — American voters, who will hear a lot about the unemployment problem during the 1940 political campaign, may know by election day in November just how many men and women are idle.

The census bureau said today that a 5 per cent sample of its job enumeration will be published during the summer and that the total count of unemployed might be completed before the election.

Unofficial and private estimates of unemployment have ranged recently from 2,000,000 to 12,000,000. Obviously, somebody is wrong, and the census-takers setting out next Tuesday are going to find out who it is.

Reynaud Says France Must 'Make War' on Nazis; Speech Hints at Large-Scale Drive

Paris — (P) — (Via Radio). — Paul Reynaud, France's new premier, told his countrymen today that France's one great duty now was "to make war."

In his first address to his countrymen since he succeeded Edouard Daladier at the head of the country last week, Reynaud thus broadly hinted that the republic planned immediate and large-scale action against Germany.

He acknowledged that for a time France had faced a political "crisis," of which he said Germany had sought to make full use in propaganda. But now, he declared, the country was strong and united.

The premier accused Adolf Hitler of "trying to create trouble in the Balkans."

"The duty of the French government," he went on, "is to put every not by surprise."

Dies Committee to Launch Immediate Investigation of Soviet Union Agents in U. S.

Washington — (P) — Chairman Dies (D-Texas) said today the house committee on un-American activities would inquire immediately into reports that Russia had hundreds of agents in the United States to obtain military and industrial secrets.

"We propose to summon witnesses as fast as we can locate them to find out about these reports of espionage by the Soviet Union," Dies said.

"We want to ask one important Communist about the subject matter of diagrams he sent to Moscow recently."

Dies made these statements to reporters while secret service men were searching for a Communist who used the name "Franklin D. Roosevelt" on his Communist party membership booklet.

James H. Dolsen, who said he was a Pittsburgh Communist, testified yesterday he had written the president's name in the booklet at the request of another Communist who turned to page 4 col 1

Defers Decision On Tax Employees

Final Status to be Determined by Friday, Commissioner Says

Madison — (P) — The final status of employees of state income and property tax offices will be decided by next Friday, Elmer Barlow, commissioner of the department of taxation, said today.

Barlow yesterday announced plans for eliminating of eight of the twelve property tax offices and earlier this month ordered a similar reduction in the number of individual income tax branches.

Property tax offices will be retained at Wausau, Sparta, Fond du Lac and Milwaukee. Offices to be abolished were located in Madison, Manitowish, Green Bay, Eau Claire, Phillips, Ashland, Elkhorn and Jefferson.

Reorganization of the two divisions, expected to net a saving of about $100,000 a year, requires a "certain number of transfers, dismissals, promotions, demotions, and salary reductions," Barlow said, estimating that about 33 employees would be dropped.

"For that reason," he said, "I want to take a few days to get a complete breakdown of employees in each office. With the figures available now I cannot present a complete picture of our personnel."

Fifty Children Leave Burning Schoolhouse

Mauston — (P) — An automatic alarm gave 50 children ample time to leave the state graded school at Mauston yesterday before the two-story, one-story frame structure burned to the ground.

Until new quarters are provided, school will be conducted in the wooden's hall at Lyndon Station.

Buckner Ready To Go to Prison

Surrenders to Federal Authorities to Start Serving 2-Year Sentence

New York — (P) — William P. Buckner, Jr., playboy promoter who tried his hand at Washington lobbying with champagne and chorus girls, surrendered to federal authorities today to begin serving a two-year sentence for mail fraud and conspiracy in the Philippine railway bond swindle.

Dapper and handsome in a gray suit, the 32-year-old Buckner, a year ago was making long-distance telephone calls to Loretta Young in Hollywood, observed smilingly that imprisonment "won't kill me."

"I haven't been to a Broadway night club in two years," he said when asked about his recent nocturnal activities.

"How about the side streets?" "Oh, that's another matter," Buckner grinned.

(Virtually all the "Broadway" night clubs are on side streets.) Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, rejecting yesterday a plea for delayed surrender, remarked:

"It seems to me that this man might be better off in prison than leading the life he had been reported to lead."

Buckner wasn't there to hear that but he appeared today as nonchalant as he was in the days when he was interesting Hollywood people, or trying to interest them, in Philippine railway bonds, and trying in Washington to get legislation to redeem the defaulted securities.

Revolt Crushed in Bolivia; State of Siege Is Declared

La Paz, Bolivia — (P) — The Bolivian government put down a short-lived revolt today by 2,000 members of a regiment of fusiliers, which government spokesmen said was due to discontent with the outcome of the recent presidential election.

The government declared a nationwide state of siege (a form of martial law) after the early-morning rebellion had been put down as the rebels were marching on the government palace.

The government said that military forces under General Antonio Ibañez, chief of the army general staff, had ended the revolt by halting the marching rebels.

Official accounts asserted that the majority of the rebelling regiment was under arrest in barracks, but unformed persons said a number of rebel soldiers had escaped with several tanks.

General Enrique Penaranda, former head of the army, was victorious in the election of March 10 and is scheduled to assume office April 16.

State G.O.P. Conclave Will Be Opened May 30

Waukesha — (P) — The executive committee of the state Republican party's voluntary organization has decided to open the G. O. P. state convention the night of May 30, at a site to be chosen later, Dr. F. L. Cullickson, West Salem, state chairman, announced last night.

The committee, meeting here, received bids for the convention from Green Bay, Wausau, Madison, Fond du Lac, Ashland, Superior and Milwaukee.

Richard F. McMillan, Eau Claire, president of the Wisconsin Young group would meet at Eau Claire, May 24 and 25.

The Republican Women's club will meet at Fond du Lac on April 15.

The Republican convention city will be chosen at a meeting of the executive committee at Fond du Lac on April 16. It is expected that all cities which invited the convention will send delegations to the Fond du Lac meeting.

Inquest Throws Little Light on Indian's Death

Verdict Says Peter Antone, 71, Was Beaten to Death

HEAR 15 WITNESSES

District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr, saying he was "not satisfied" with the testimony given, announced that the investigation in the Indian's death would be continued.

Fifteen witnesses testified, but no new light was thrown on the circumstances surrounding the death of Antone, whose body, with the chest crushed in, was found in the Al Manders tavern yard about 6 o'clock Sunday morning, March 10. Two Indians, who admitted they were at the tavern on Saturday night, March 9, said they had been too drunk to remember anything that took place, while others testified that there was a fight but that Antone was not involved.

Dr. J. L. Ford, Green Bay pathologist, ended his blood and tissue report from the victim's injuries caused by the man's chest bone was depressed by a blow of a rounded object and that all ribs were fractured. There were but a few superficial abrasions of the skin on the right cheek, under the chin, on the front part of the neck, both wrists and right elbow. The shoulder bone was dislocated, he testified.

Manders told the jury that Antone had been in the tavern since the afternoon and had remained until closing time. He said that he was in and out of the tavern several times between chores at his farm, which he operates in connection with the tavern, but that he did not begin to tend bar until 9:30 in the evening. He said he served Antone

British Liner on Secret Mission

Mauretania Goes Through Panama Canal to Pacific Ocean

Cristobal, C. Z. — (P) — Britain's big liner, Mauretania, bent on a secret war mission, went through the Panama canal to the Pacific ocean today.

The 35,739-ton liner was believed to be enroute to Australia to carry troops from there to the Near East.

Stripped of her usual elaborate furnishings with which she normally carries 1,500 passengers in style, the Mauretania's capacity as a troop ship is presumed to have been increased about 10-fold.

The gray liner presented a somewhat spartan aspect, the tranquil background of Limon, bay as a squadron of United States army pursuit planes circled briefly overhead. Three canal pilots were aboard as she passed through the locks.

The Mauretania reached here last night, dark except for her running lights, after a voyage from New York. She left New York last Wednesday under sealed orders.

Last Thursday the 81,335-ton Queen Mary followed the Mauretania out of New York, also on a secret mission. She too was believed to be heading for Australia to serve as a troop ship, but because of her size she is unable to pass through the canal. If she is bound for Australia she will have to round the Cape of Good Hope.

Both the $25,000,000 Queen Mary and the $20,000,000 Mauretania are on Germany's official list of vessels to be attacked as armed raiders.

Derailment in Which Fireman Died Is Laid To 'Misplaced Switch'

Crystal Lake, Ill. — (P) — Pending further investigation, a "misplaced switch" was blamed today for the derailment of the Viking, North Western road passenger train, and the resultant death of fireman Carl Miller of Baraboo, Wis.

Railroad men said the train apparently ran through a switch used to shift trains from the main line to a spur during construction of a state highway underpass a quarter-mile west of here.

The train was enroute from Minneapolis to Chicago when the accident occurred yesterday afternoon. The locomotive plunged down a 12-foot embankment but the nine coaches, although derailed, remained upright.

Fireman Miller was scalded to death. Engineer Thomas Conway of Madison, Wis., also was scalded but his condition was described as "fairly good" by attendants.

Mr. A. Sorenson of Chicago was slightly injured. Other passengers were shaken.

Madison — (P) — Former Governor Philip F. LaFollette was a passenger on the Viking, North Western railroad passenger train derailed yesterday near Crystal Lake, Ill. His office said he was enroute east on business. He was not injured.

7 Labor Cases in Courts To be Basis of Attack on Validity of Wisconsin Laws

House Is Damaged, Man Escapes Unhurt As Stove Blows Up

Menasha — (P) — J. J. Handley, secretary of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, said today that seven labor cases now pending in circuit courts here would serve as the foundation for a legal attack on the constitutionality of state labor laws by the American Federation of Labor.

The cases, including four brought by employers, were discussed at a conference of the state federation's executive board yesterday. Handley said. Attending were Joseph A. Padway, general counsel for the A. F. L., and I. E. Goldberg, A. F. L. union attorney.

Padway announced previously that the A. F. L. would join the state federation in testing the Catlin "stranger picketing" law and the employment peace act.

One issue to be tested in three suits growing out of a current strike of the A. F. L. hotel and restaurant employees at the Plankinton, Kilbourn and Wisconsin hotels will be the constitutionality of a clause in the "peace act" requiring a majority of workers in a given place to approve a walkout by secret ballot.

Another issue which has grown out of the hotel strike is whether the state law has jurisdiction in cases where interstate commerce is involved. Union leaders said that victory in the hotel cases would settle the jurisdiction question but would result in a broad interpretation of what constitutes interstate commerce.

Legality of the "stranger picketing" ban is to be tested in the Hostess Ice Cream company case, in which the employer seeks an injunction to halt picketing of its plant by the A. F. L. building trades council. The council is picketing to advertise the asserted use of non-union help by building contractors doing work for the company. The strikers are not company employees.

In a Moskin Clothing company suit against the retail clerks local the issue is the right of a minority to picket and strike for a closed shop contract.

Other issues include the board's certification of an independent hotel union, a board order ruling the hotel strike illegal, and the validity of one union's contract.

Blizzard Blocks Roads; Total Vote Expected To be Cut Down

Ottawa — (P) — Conduct of the war against Germany was the central issue in voting today as Canada's liberal party government staked its existence on the first national parliamentary election since Oct. 14, 1935.

The only parties which could command a majority of the 245 seats in the house of commons unaided were the liberals, led by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, and a national government group headed by Dr. Robert J. Manion, conservative leader.

A weekend blizzard which blocked many roads was expected to reduce the number of today's voters, previously estimated at about 5,000,000 out of approximately 6,500,000 eligible.

While the main campaign issue was conduct of the war, other issues relating to war and post-war problems were debated in the tight-week campaign.

Charge inefficiency Mackenzie King dissolved parliament Jan. 25 and called the election in answer to critics of his war policy.

Spokesmen of the national government group attacked the administration's record of preparation for and actual conduct of the war, contending it was slow and inefficient.

Liberal spokesmen contended the administration compared very favorably with that during the first six months of the World war, when a conservative government was in power.

Both major parties expressed opposition to conscription, proposing to carry on the system of voluntary enlistments under which some 90,000 candidates have joined the colors.

Of the 689 candidates for the 244 seats at stake, 239 are liberals, 212 are followers of Dr. Manion; 95 represent the cooperative commonwealth federation; 25 the new democracy and 94 are independents or of miscellaneous parties.

The death of Willie Poisson, liberal candidate in the Three Rivers constituency, resulted in postponement of the election there until some later date.

Calumet County Sheriff Hurt As He Prevents Jail Break; Two Sentenced to Reformatory

Chilton — As an aftermath of an attempted jailbreak at the Calumet county jail yesterday, Sheriff Gerhard Jensen is recovering from a severe head wound and two Sturgeon Bay youths must serve terms in the state reformatory at Green Bay.

Sheriff Jensen was attacked when he served breakfast to Alvin Polzen, 16, and Robert DeGroot, 17, in the jail Monday morning. He said Polzen, who had taken a log from a table in the cell, struck him on the head. Though dazed by the blow, the sheriff warded off a second attack, knocked Polzen down and managed to get out of the cell and lock the door. While the wound was severe, it was not serious, and Sheriff Jensen was able to be about his duties today.

Arranged on a charge of assault to do great bodily harm, the pair was bound over to circuit court yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace F. J. Schmieder. Polzen pleaded guilty and immediately was sentenced by Judge Henry P. Hughes to 1 to 3 years in the reformatory. DeGroot pleaded not guilty but changed his plea upon his return to court this morning and drew a term of 1 to 14 years in the reformatory.

Arrested at Sturgeon Bay Friday, the youths were brought to the county jail by Sheriff Jensen to face charges of stealing a car owned by Elmer Spang, Sherwood, at Hilbert March 18. The stolen car, charged will not be brought against the pair at the present time. Sheriff Jensen said they had been scheduled to appear in juvenile court in the car theft case.

Prisoner Says Career Was Started In 1904

GETS LONG TERM

George Lanahan, 57, has confessed 40 robberies and safe burglaries in Wisconsin, including the Appleton Senior High school and the Van Zeeland Implement company near Kaukauna, Sheriff Owen Rex, Janesville said today, according to the Associated Press.

The sheriff planned to question Lanahan regarding the recent attempt to burglarize Lawrence college. The attempt failed when only part of the safe door in the administrative office was blown off. About $400 was taken from the high school last fall.

Sheriff Rex quoted Lanahan as admitting a crime career beginning in 1904 and theft of loot totaling about $500,000 since then.

Lanahan was sentenced yesterday to serve from 11 to 28 years in Wisconsin State prison when he pleaded guilty to charge of breaking and entering, possession of a burglary tool and aggravated assault after his arrest in the Rock county service co-operative warehouse.

Sentenced with him was Ray Conley, 34, alias George O'Brien, 20, Billings, Mont., who received 9 to 20 years.

Rex said the signed confession was made last night before himself, District Attorney John H. Mathison, Chief of Police William Ford, and other officials.

Lists Crimes Most of the Wisconsin crimes occurred in 1938, 1939 or 1940. Rex said Lanahan was unable in every instance to provide dates or amounts, but listed these robberies or safe burglaries:

Dane County Farm bureau at Madison, Feb. 23, 1940, $60 to $70; Ripon college $400; school at Dodgeville; stores at Bosobel and Mayville; Standard Oil and Wadhams stations at Eau Claire, $90; Jaeger Baking company, Janesville, $600; general store at Thorp, $501; general store at Westbrook, Taylor county; breweries at Rhinelander, Shawano and Oshkosh;

Hardware store at Crivitz, Marinette county, $400; Wadhams Bulk station at Coleman, Marinette county, $300; co-operative at Ashland; school at Merrill; unidentified place near Luxemburg, Kewaunee county; feed mill at Denmark, Appleton High school, $400; Stevens Point High school, $900;

Wadhams Station, Oshkosh; Fond du Lac High school; Sheboygan High school; Fairchild general store, $1,782 in cash and $500 in jewels; Van Zeeland Implement Company near Kaukauna; general store at Hurley; Sinclair plant at Hurley; Berlin brewery; Mosinee, unidentified place; Capital bakery at Madison, Feb. 23, 1940, $900 to $1,000.

Wadhams Bulk station at Madison, March 27, 1939, hauled away safe, Feb. 16, 1940, exchanged shots with marshal at Brookfield, Wis.; Beloit High school, six months ago; Fox Lake Bulk company, $200.

Set Up Trust Fund Rex said that Lanahan, also known as Robert Wahr, admitted committing most of his early crimes in Illinois. He married and reformed, but when his wife died he went to crime. Rex said Lanahan had $11,000 in a trust fund for a daughter whom he would not identify. He refused to name any companions in the robberies.

Early in 1938 Lanahan worked in Colorado, Utah and Idaho, the confession related. With two others he committed a bank robbery in the Dakotas, Rex said.

The sheriff planned to hold Lanahan for a day or two for additional questioning before taking him to the state prison.

Rex said that Lanahan later recalled burglaries at Tomah, Green Valley (near Green Bay), Mauston, Camp Douglas and Park Falls. The sheriff planned to question Lanahan regarding cases at Superior and Appleton, where Lawrence college was entered.

The sheriff described Lanahan as a "smart, witty professional criminal" who had served time only once, on a charge of possession of fire

Demonstrates Power Of New Oxygen Bomb

Baltimore — (P) — Lester Barlow gave a demonstration today of the power contained in his liquid-oxygen-carbon bomb, an explosive he contends is capable of wiping out every living thing within a 1,000-foot radius.

As reporters and photographers crowded behind a sandbag, Barlow set off an explosive charge of his explosive and made matchwork of two heavy logs. Several pieces were hurled more than a hundred feet into the air.

Wallace Backs Proposed Changes In Credit System

Reductions in Interest Rates Part of Reorganization Plan

Washington—(P)—Secretary Wallace approved in general today a sweeping farm credit reorganization bill proposed by Representative Jones (D-Texas).

Appearing before the house agriculture committee, Wallace described as "a highly desirable objective" the measure's proposal to reduce federal land bank and land bank commission loans to 3 per cent.

Land bank loans (first mortgage) are now 3 1/2 per cent. Commission or second mortgage loans are 4 per cent.

The agriculture secretary also approved provisions for teaming outstanding land bank and commission loans and for the scaling down of loan principal in cases where loans exceed the value of the land.

Likewise, he endorsed the principle of variable repayment of loans, under which repayment would be adjusted to the farmer's economic condition at the time.

His approval also was given to abolition of a requirement that borrowers must take out 5 per cent of their loans in federal land bank stock.

On the other hand, Wallace expressed "some concern" over a provision to abolish personal responsibility of borrowers.

Under this section of the measure, borrowers could wipe out their indebtedness by deeding over their property to the land bank even though the value of the land at the time was less than the amount of the loan.

"It seems to me," Wallace said, "that the committee might consider making the mortgage personally liable, in any event, for any interest on the mortgage debt while the property was operated by the mortgagee, which had not been paid by him while in possession of the farm."

"It seems to me that cases will undoubtedly arise, from time to time, in which an unscrupulous mortgagee will keep hold of the mortgaged property as long as possible, with no intention of meeting the mortgage debt, and who might take advantage of the proposed provision against deficiency judgments by making no payments whatever in the period preceding his abandonment of the farm."

Hungarian Chief Has Conference With Mussolini

Apparently Concerned Over Future of South-eastern Europe

Rome—(P)—Premier Count Telyky of Hungary and Premier Mussolini of Italy conferred today as the Hungarian leader continued his consultations here apparently designed to learn more of what the future holds for south-eastern Europe.

Informed diplomatic quarters expressed belief that Telyky's chief concern in the talk was what may have been agreed at the March 18 meeting of Mussolini and Adolf Hitler at the Brenner pass. Thus far, as far as surface indications go, the conference has left unchanged Italy's well-known attitude toward the Hungarian war.

The Hungarian premier talked yesterday with Italy's foreign minister and son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

In an interview published by the newspaper La Tribuna before his talk with Mussolini, Telyky said that although peace had not yet been disturbed in the Balkans that did not mean "there are no problems to solve."

"It is significant," he said, "that Hungary is aware of the difficulties of the times and has assumed an attitude which harmonizes with the higher European necessities."

"My country is patient," he said in the interview. "I can wait. That is our feeling."

Telyky declined to define Hungary's relation with Rumania, from which it has long claimed Transylvania, saying "the less one speaks today, the more burning problems the better."

He asserted that his talks with Mussolini and Ciano were solely for the purpose of informing himself of Italian views and expounding Hungary's attitude.

"Anyone who expects anything from these Rome talks is mistaken," Telyky said. "I am here for an exchange of views. There is much to learn in Rome. I too can contribute from direct observations."

Relations with Rums

The Hungarian premier was asked about Hungary's relations with her new neighbor, Soviet Russia, about which he was expected to talk with Mussolini. Russia's occupation of eastern Poland has her a common frontier with Hungary.

"Nothing extraordinary is happening on that front," Telyky said. "There are no incidents and incidents are proper."

Hungary's relations with Yugoslavia, he said, are good and capable of improvement, but he said he did not believe that the signing of any agreement was imminent.

Hungary also lost territory to Yugoslavia after the last war.

County Telyky went sight-seeing in Rome before lunch as the guest of Alessandro Pavolini, minister of popular culture, at Rome's beach resort, Castel Fusano. After lunch, he visited the site of Rome's 1942 exposition while waiting for Mussolini to receive him.

Democratic Senator Opposes Third Term

Washington—(P)—Senator Overton (D-La.) reported today that "if President Roosevelt runs again, I am afraid he may bring disaster both to himself and to his party."

Wholesale Co-Op In Session Today

Valley Organization to Hear Talk by Milwaukee Chemist

About 125 persons were present at the semi-annual meeting of the Fox River Valley Cooperative Wholesale Association at the Hotel Appleton today. The meeting opened with a dinner at noon, and a buffet supper will be served this evening.

About 30 cities and towns in this section of the state are represented at the meeting of which A. F. Stapel, Appleton, manager and treasurer, is in charge. Zeno Letellier, vice president and chief chemist of the Pate Oil company, Milwaukee, was to talk this afternoon on "Petroleum and Its Products."

The cooperative handles agricultural products, hardware specialties and petroleum and petroleum products. A display of merchandise was being made in connection with the meeting.

Vandenberg Praised For Staying on Job Despite Campaign

Racine—(P)—Lieutenant Governor Walter S. Goodland, praising Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan for diligence in his senatorial duties, declared last night that this nation needs a president who will pay duty before furtherance of personal ambitions.

Goodland, a Vandenberg candidate for delegate-at-large in the Republican presidential primary next week, said in part:

"Despite the personal appeals of all the Vandenberg delegate candidates in Wisconsin to Senator Vandenberg for him to speak in Wisconsin before the April 2 election in which he has so much at stake, he refused. He pointed out his primary responsibility to all the people was on the senate floor at this time."

"The action of Senator Vandenberg is in clear contrast to that of the young New York district attorney (Thomas E. Dewey) who has been away from his work for four months in his campaign for the presidential nomination."

Texas Governor To Publish His Own Newspaper

Says Press Deals Unfairly With Him: Will Give 'All the Facts'

Austin, Texas—(P)—From a Reynosa, Mexico, radio station Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, Texas' hill-billy singer, told Texans he was starting his own newspaper, the W. Lee O'Daniel News.

It will be a weekly with a subscription rate of 25 cents for the next four months. It will be published at Fort Worth and will give Texans "all the facts."

The governor, whose songs, poems and talks are broadcast on some Texas radio stations each Sunday morning, has complained of his treatment by some newspapers and some stations.

"No recent governor has been so unfairly dealt with as the press has dealt with me," he said in the Mexican broadcast.

The man who wrote and made famous the songs, "Pass the Biscuits, Pappy," and "The Boy Who Never Grew Too Old To Brush His Mother's Hair," said his newspaper would publish "all" of his speeches, a portion of which have been in rhyme from time to time.

Profits to Red Cross

The former flour salesman, who campaigned two years ago with a band that played mountain music, said his paper would give all its profits to the Red Cross.

His column will contain "important state documents, minutes of the state boards and commissions, and all facts of laws and proposed laws in order that the public may be given the truth."

The newspaper, he said, will be a means of "thwarting the professional politicians" who have taken many a tongue-lashing from the governor since he assumed office in January, 1939.

Some Texas radio stations require advance copies of his speeches. He asserted this is "censorship."

Ice Water Fertilizes Ova In Rabbits, Science Finds

RY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Editor

New York—(P)—Discovery that ice water, merely by its chilling effect, can fertilize the ova of mammals was announced today in the proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

The report described a recently-born female rabbit whose father was nothing more than the chill of 20 minutes of ice water in a brass jacket which was placed temporarily around one of the Fallopian tubes of the rabbit mother.

These experiments were done by Dr. Gregory Pincus of Clark University, and Herbert Shapiro of Vassar college, when exploring a new scientific and medical idea that low temperature alone may be sufficient to give rise to virgin births.

Dr. Pincus is the scientist who first demonstrated, two years ago, that mammals can have parthenogenesis, or virgin birth, if their ova are subjected to the irrigation of warm salt solutions. He raised several litters of parthenogenetic rabbits to prove this. All were females.

In the lower orders of life, such as the insects, where virgin birth is commonplace, all the young are female.

Indian Killed by Beating, Verdict Of Inquest Jury

but one drink, and that the man spent most of the evening sleeping while sitting on an empty keg or bar stool.

The tavernkeeper testified that there was a "little rumpus" between 11 and 12 o'clock Saturday night when Harvey Adams, Oneida, struck at another person, but that this was quieted and no one was injured. He said he looked up shortly before 1 o'clock Sunday morning that and that he saw the man who had been killed lying in the yard. The tavernkeeper said that shortly after he went to bed, he heard someone at the door asking for gas, but that he didn't get up and didn't know who the party was.

Sold Antone Whisky

Mrs. Hattie Coulton, who said she lived at the Manders home and sometimes tended bar, testified that Antone came into the tavern about 2:30 in the afternoon and that she sold him a half pint of whisky. She did not see him drink it, she said, but added that "he was canned up."

She told the inquest jury that she left the tavern and did not return until late in the evening. She said Antone was in no altercation while she was in the tavern.

Slept In Barn

Christjohn said that he had had a beer with Antone in the tavern early in the evening but that later he was too drunk to remember anything. He slept in the barn at the Manders tavern and did not see Antone until after the body was discovered Sunday morning, he testified.

Grant Hill, route 2, West DePere, said that he and his wife and another couple were in the tavern early in the evening and that he saw Antone. Returning to the tavern after driving to several other places, Hill said he saw the fight between Adams and two other men. He left the tavern when Manders locked up, he testified.

Delphina Smith, who resides across the road from the Manders tavern, said that she spent part of the evening in the place and that after going home she heard Antone outside the window about 1:30 in the morning and saw Antone on the tavern porch. A car was in front of the tavern, but she was not sure of its ownership, she testified.

Says Equality of Opportunity Only Peace Guarantee

International Cooperation Answer to Europe's Ills, Haas Says

Making it possible for all European countries to "buy on equal terms" the resources from other lands which they need is the only solution to continental turmoil, Grant C. Haas, Madison lecturer and author, said in a talk before the Appleton Lions club yesterday noon in the Conway hotel.

Haas said that only by a program of international cooperation can the unjust inequalities which exist among European countries be corrected and a lasting peace assured.

Pointing out that Africa is the "nearest source of supply for the needy European countries," he declared that an international commission and bank should be set up to direct the flow of goods from Africa to Europe and to determine what prices should be paid. This, he said, would guarantee equal opportunity for countries to purchase much needed commodities on a fair basis.

The basic reason for dictatorships is the economy of scarcity," he said. "Whenever such conditions exist, it is natural for dictators to appear. Only through dictatorship can you distribute equitably less than enough."

Haas gave as other outstanding causes of dictatorships in Europe the high degree of illiteracy, the numerous political parties which turn parliaments into "debating societies," and the revolutionary programs which people will accept only if forced to.

Chaotic Conditions

Europe lives under conditions of chaos and crowding that are "worse than China's," Haas said. He pointed out that all of Europe, not including Russia, occupies an area no larger than the region between the Mississippi river and Pacific coast and that it holds a population of 385,000,000 people, representing 27 nationalities and 25 languages. These peoples represent nine basically different races and five basically different religions, Haas said.

"It is impossible for them to produce enough for their own wants. Unless they can get these commodities and products elsewhere, they must inevitably decline."

Democracy cannot flourish healthily unless there is a "reasonable standard of education in the country," Haas said, in declaring Europe's high illiteracy percentages as being one of the leading causes of dictatorship. He cited illiteracy figures such as Rumania's 90 per cent, Russia's 75 per cent, Italy's 50 per cent.

Numerous political parties in European countries have meant parliamentary delay and indecision, Haas said, forcing people out of desperation to follow leaders who promised action.

On the Mediterranean

Speaking of Mussolini's aims to make the Mediterranean sea an "Italian lake," Haas asked, "if it is unjust for him to control it, hasn't it been just as unjust for any other nation to control it?" The Mediterranean, the speaker declared, should be an "international highway, accessible to all nations on an equal basis."

Many European people recognize the trouble and the need for international cooperation, Haas said. "All countries must make concessions, must pay a price for lasting peace, but each leader is still trying to figure out how to get by without paying his part."

The lecturer said that recent years have failed, generally, in bringing out any "great and good leaders" in Europe.

He predicted that "if there is any spring offensive" it will come from the Near East, where an allied army is now assembled. The most logical move, he said, is the landing of a force of from 300,000 to 400,000 men at the Greek port of Salonika. From there the army could move up into Rumania, Yugoslavia and could bottle up the Danubian line.

He predicted that if there is any western front offensive, the "side which goes on the offensive will have a revolution at home within six months."

English Press Fears British Publicity Losing Out to Nazi Propaganda in U. S. Journals

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(P)—The English press has been experiencing a wave of anxiety over what the United States thinks about the war, the burden of its fears being summed up in such headlines as "Britain Loses War of Words; Goebbels' Lies Sweep America."

That is to say, British publicity is held to be losing in the race with the brand put out by Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels. Having reached this conclusion, however, the papers don't appear to have discovered any more satisfactory reason for this state of affairs (as they see it) than that "Goebbels Gulls America."

This argument about American publicity might hold good up to a point but it seems to be inconclusive. Abraham Lincoln put the matter rather neatly in the remark that "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can not fool all the people all of the time."

That goes for Herr Goebbels, too. It is equally true as regards the English newspaper assertion that "Hitler thinks he can fool the United States" by talking peace and good-will.

Have No Answer

That leaves the English newspapers without any satisfactory answer to their problem. However, it's probably well that the question has come up, for it might be a good thing to get it thrashed out before the dogs of war get into full cry.

In the first place I don't believe the situation is as dark as it looks to the British press. We haven't got mad and refused to slide down their cellar door. Still, while they may be seeing spooks, they also are seeing some substance.

So far as actual "propaganda" goes we don't like any of it and are wary of all of it, whatever its source. However, if we seem particularly shy of certain types of British publicity it strikes me that it is due largely to one reason.

I refer to the rather constant effort to persuade or pull us into the war in support of the allied cause. This certainly has caused widespread resentment in America and may have colored the view of some of our people towards legitimate news.

Fair Support

This idea would seem to have fair support in the uproar caused last week in Washington and throughout the country by the strong anti-German, pro-allies speech of our minister to Canada, James Cromwell, who was rebuked publicly by Secretary of State Hull. Our red-hot reaction to Cromwell's speech would help put Britain right in this matter. Whatever our private thoughts may be, that reaction seemed to show that we are neutral officially and intend to stay so.

In the present instance, England apparently fails to recognize how intensely we resent anything which we consider infringement of our freedom of thought and action. Everything will go all right if our British cousins only recognize that we very independent and perhaps too opinionated Americans will do what we are going to do for our own good reasons. We decline to be driven.

All of which is by way of saying that we don't want to be advised any more, or invited any more, to come into European war. And because we adopt this attitude it shouldn't be taken for granted that we don't want to be friends.

Could Lift Censorship

There is another way in which the English could improve the presentation of the news from their side of the war. That is to give American newspapermen more freedom of action and less of the very stifled and, as the British press itself has said, often rather absurd censorship.

As typical of this censorship I mention that I received a bunch of London newspapers the other day, and believe it or not, the English censor had taken his little scissors and snipped holes until one or two of the papers looked like sieves. And they already had been circulated throughout England and presumably on to the continent. Was there some terrible news that had to be kept from America? I don't believe so—just bad psychology.

The only major powers maintaining the old-fashioned, war-time censorship are England, France and Russia.

Just as a sort of postscript, it's probable that both America and England are a bit too touchy at over invitations to join the war, forgetting how anxious the belligerents are for help. And by the same token, England likely would do well not to be too critical when we refuse without thanks.

Sen. Vandenberg Speaks to State Voters Over Radio

Says Republican Party Should Have Clear, Explicit Platform

Washington—(P)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) believes his party should have a "clear and explicit" platform and "seasoned leadership" for the 1940 campaign.

The Michigan senator spoke over a nationwide radio hookup last night. His address was intended particularly for the Republican electorate in Wisconsin.

Vandenberg is an aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, and some politicians thought his remarks about "seasoned leadership" was directed at Thomas E. Dewey, 38-year old New York prosecutor who is opposing him in the Wisconsin primary April 2.

Vandenberg, who has been in the senate for 12 years, said that two "unknown quantities" might become dominant issues in the 1940 campaign. These he listed as the third term question and the war abroad.

If the people were confronted with the third term issue, he said, they "might well conclude that" perpetuated white house tenacity, contrary to 150 years of unwritten law, would menace the life of American democracy. He added:

"Similarly, if the war were to drift toward our involvement—say, for the sake of argument, in the pattern of the president's famous Chicago speech in favor of 'quarantines'—the voters might forget all else."

"Then . . . the monopolizing challenge might become—Millions for defense, but not one man or dollar for war on foreign soil," or: "Let's swap horses and stay on this side of the stream."

Jaces Agree to Ask Council to Build Swim Pool

Board Urges Construction Of Municipal Tank During 1940

The board of directors of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce last night adopted a resolution asking the common council to build a municipal swimming pool in Appleton.

The board in its resolution said that "the responsibility for the construction of a pool has been expressed through public opinion as lying in the hands of the mayor and common council" and urged that construction be started by May 1 this year.

The board in its resolution said that "the responsibility for the construction of a pool has been expressed through public opinion as lying in the hands of the mayor and common council" and urged that construction be started by May 1 this year.

H. L. Davis, Jr., president of the Jaces, said this morning that the junior chamber will continue to offer its services to promote a pool for Appleton. He said it has been found that efforts to raise the money by public subscription were impractical.

The Jaces last year contacted Appleton citizens to try to raise the money by subscription but ran into difficulties. Material about pools that the Jaces have gathered including three sets of proposed plans will be turned over to the city council, Davis said.

The council last Wednesday authorized the mayor to appoint a committee of five aldermen to select a site for a municipal pool after Alderman Bogan in a militant speech urged that a pool be built in 1940.

Movie Actor Aids Citizenship Day

Edward Arnold Says He Would Give Up Year's Work for Program

Washington—(P)—Edward Arnold, who recently appeared on the screen as a political boss giving orders to United States senators, testified before a real-life senate committee yesterday and admitted, "my knees were shaking."

The portly actor, looking more senatorial than most senators, told a judiciary sub-committee that he would be willing to give up a year's movie work to aid in promoting a nationwide, annual observance for new citizens.

Asked how much money that would mean to him, Arnold said only that he paid $32,000 of his salary in income taxes last year.

Someone remarked that that was more than enough to pay three senators.

Arnold, vice president of the Screen Actors guild, and organization chairman of the "I Am An American" Panegyric foundation, testified in behalf of resolutions to authorize the president to proclaim a national new citizen or citizenship recognition day—a "graduation day" for naturalized and native-born citizens.

Fifth Annual Egg Hunt Is Held in Brillion Park

Brillion—The fifth annual Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Brillion Lions club was held at Horn park Sunday. The activities at the park were preceded by a parade headed by the Brillion High school band. Because of the cold weather the parade was not as large as it was in recent years but the turn-out at the park was about the usual size crowd.

The finders of the gold and silver eggs will be awarded special prizes. Weather Forecast For Tomorrow Is Filled With Snow

New York Digs Out After Blizzard; Temper- ature to Rise

Inhabitants of Appleton and vicinity eyed gray skies and flurries of snow this afternoon, shrugged their shoulders, and resigned themselves to more waiting for spring weather.

They will have to wait through tomorrow, anyway, for the weatherman today forecast snow tonight and Wednesday but tempered his disappointing announcement with a prediction that temperatures will rise.

Standing at 10 above at 6 o'clock this morning, the 24-hour low, the mercury had climbed to 27 above by 12:30 this afternoon. Yesterday's high of 30 was recorded at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

The Associated Press reported from Albany, N. Y., today that clearing skies and subsidence of strong winds aided crew in opening snow-clogged roads in the wake of a storm which left five New York cities virtually snowbound, mangled thousands of motorists and indirectly caused six deaths.

Worst Since 1888
Described in some sections as the worst since 1888's mighty blizzard, the storm struck during the Easter week-end and reached its climax last night, crippling vehicular traffic, slowing train service, and curtailing milk deliveries.

Crews struggled to clear highways in the vicinity of Rochester, Syracuse, Rome, Utica and Malone, which bore the brunt of the wind-lashed snow and became nearly inaccessible by bus or automobile.

A weather disturbance centered over Colorado was moving slowly eastward today, carrying general snow and rain into the middle west, it was reported from Chicago.

Forecasters A. J. Knarr of Chicago said that while temperatures would continue rising in the mid-continent, snow would fall in the northern sections and rain in the southern parts of the middle west tonight and tomorrow. Precipitation generally will be light although the fall in some localities may reach moderate depths, Knarr said.

Phoenix, Ariz., with 91, and Park Falls with four below turned in the high and low temperatures respectively in the nation yesterday.

New Quill, Scroll Members Hosts at Meeting of Society

New members of the Edward Weismiller chapter of the Quill and Scroll society entertained the group at Appleton High school Monday afternoon. Barbara Jane Rosebush was in charge.

Marion Maves opened the program with a reading, "Grandpa Gets Ready for Sunday School," relating the problems Grandpa encountered when Grandma insisted on a rigid cleansing procedure. Betty Schneider read a monologue, a take-off on the average woman purchasing a pair of shoes. Armin Scheurle discussed the athletic program of Appleton High school and of his own ambitions to become a sports writer. Don Smith offered a humorous reading, "Mr. Kaplan Bears His Teeth." The last to appear on the program was Harold Weiland who discussed the Badger Boys State sponsored by the American Legion.

Joe Marston presided over the meeting as president. Minutes were read by the secretary, Beverly Olson.

Brilliant Man Suffers Stroke at His Home

He was found lying in the chicken coop about 9 o'clock Sunday morning by his granddaughter who had come to call for him to visit at her parents' home.

wanted to be "protected by a false name." Dolsen said he tried to dissuade the other man from selecting that name because "Franklin D. Roosevelt never was a Communist and never would be."

After the witness declined to answer questions about party affairs and some of his own activities, the Dies committee decided to start contempt proceedings against him.

Dolsen based his refusal to answer a long list of queries on the ground that no congressional committee had authority to investigate irrelevant matters, that some of the answers might incriminate him, and that he had the right to protect the names of certain persons.

Discussing the investigation of reports about Russian agents, Dies said that committee agents were searching primarily for Clarence

Man Convicted of Taking Stolen Car Across State Lines

Earl H. Cary, 44, Chicago, was fined $100 in federal court at Milwaukee yesterday after being convicted of transporting a stolen car, taken at Neenah Sept. 27, 1938, across state lines.

Judge F. Ryan Duffy, who heard the case without a jury, also sentenced Cary to a year and a day in prison, but suspended sentence and placed the defendant on probation for 18 months.

The government called 25 witnesses in a move to disprove Cary's contention that another man had stolen the car and driven it to Providence, R. I. The car later was abandoned at Canton, O. The car was owned by S. D. Bayer, Chicago.

arms and assault, in South Dakota, although he had been arrested several times for vagrancy and drunkenness.

Lanahan realized, Sheriff Rex added, that his sentence amounted to a life term. "Police in general I don't like," Rex quoted him as saying, "but you fellows (in Janesville) have been swell to me and I'm going to tell you the jobs I pulled in Wisconsin."

Rex jogged Lanahan's memory by naming towns and burglaries, and if Lanahan remembered them he would say so. Once, Rex quoted him, there was a "rival outfit" blowing safes in Wisconsin. "But I guess we scared them out because they were afraid too much would be pinned on them."

Lanahan related that he began as a bank robber and that the biggest job was in a South Dakota town he would not name. The loot was $33,000, of which Lanahan's share was $11,000.

"I thought I was set for life," Rex quoted him, "but in six weeks it was gone."

The only money Lanahan could or would account for was the $10,000 in a trust fund for his daughter, Rex said.

Lanahan was born in Los Angeles, Calif., and would not say what his right name was. He had only $20 on him when arrested. Conley had about $100.

He pulled no bank jobs after the federal government insured deposits. Lanahan was quoted. He admitted crimes in nearly every state and Hawaii.

In the wake of the confession came two denials: one that he had "shot it out" with the Brooklyn, N. Y., marshal, the other that at Kaukauna, Wis., he had been blown through the roof of the building. At Brooklyn, Lanahan was quoted, he fired wildly to frighten the marshal. The Kaukauna story was "exaggerated" although a "piece of metal" might have gone through the roof.

Pleads Guilty to Two Charges, Fined on Each

A new feature this year will be an information booth which will provide literature and help to people who are interested in visiting Wisconsin's scenic and historic places.

A list of all specimens on exhibit together with descriptions of each will be sent to school teachers in Outagamie county, Neenah and Menasha several weeks before the exhibit. Concessions will be operated by the conservation club. The exhibit will be partly financed by the city council and the county board.

On the committee assisting Foor are Arthur Boroch, William Olson, H. J. Dresely, Phalen, Van Ryzin, Gordon Ratzman, Leonard Zehren, John Schwerbel, Michael King, Robert Krause, Earl Tews, Fred Rehfeldt, Fred De Guire, Herman Price, Sylvester Vandenberg and Wilbur Steens.

PTA to Sponsor Plays Next Year

Clare Tree Major Productions on Program Of Organization

The Edison Parent Teachers association last night voted to again sponsor Clare Tree Major plays at a meeting at Edison school. Mrs. Ben W. Rowland was reelected chairman of the program.

The organization sponsored two of the plays this season and will present a third, "Old King Cole," next Tuesday at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of the First Methodist church, talked on "Religion in the Home." He told the PTA that "statistics show a large percentage of teachers are affiliated with churches and the result is religion through example." He said that superior personalities in children are developed in homes where both parents attend Sunday school and church regularly.

Members also voted to sponsor a cub pack to be affiliated with the Valley Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Officers will be elected at the next meeting of the organization. On the nominating committee are Mrs. Harold Heller, Mrs. Joseph Benton and Miss Maye Holmberg.

'Vice President' of Murder Syndicate Links Ring With New York Waterfront Gang

New York—(T)—District Attorney William O'Dwyer said today that Abe "Kid Twist" Reles, 34, alleged "vice president" of Murder, Inc., the Brooklyn crime syndicate already linked with 30-odd gang slayings, had divulged new facts interlocking the murder ring with a powerful waterfront gang headed by Joe Adonis.

O'Dwyer said Adonis, an almost mythical underworld figure who purportedly inherited the shopworn toga successively handed down by John Torrio and Frankie Yale, had been named by Reles as sometimes calling in the triggermen of Murder, Inc., to "take care of" certain cases.

The Brooklyn prosecutor said Reles had given him an "important lead" regarding Peter Panto, 28, a Brooklyn waterfront labor leader who disappeared July 14 after kissing his sweetheart, Alice Maffis, 20, and telling her:

"I'm going out to meet a couple of guys I don't trust."

Reles was never seen again. Meanwhile, two other figures in the drama of cleaning up Brooklyn's gang-ridden Augean stables appeared briefly in Coney Island court to have technical charges of vagrancy dismissed before returning to more serious business.

Albert Tannenbaum, 34, indicted in upstate Sullivan county for first-degree murder in the slaying of Irving Ashkenas, a Brooklyn cab driver, in 1936, had been held in $25,000 bail on the vagrancy count. He was returned to the Raymond street jail in Brooklyn on the murder charge.

His alleged companion, Charles "The Big" Workman, 30, also won a dismissal on the vagrancy charge but was picked up quickly for questioning on orders from Assistant District Attorney Burton Turkus.

Turkus said he would ask that Workman be held in $100,000 bail as a material witness in the slaughter combine investigation.

Turkus said Workman knew the slayer or slayers of Joseph Rosen, a Brooklyn candy store proprietor killed by a blast of 28 sawed-off shotgun slugs on Sept. 13, 1936.

"Workman also knows the motive for that murder, which, like many others, was a 'contract killing,'" Turkus said.

Reles has been a witness for District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey in his investigation of the fur trucking racket dominated by Louis "Lepke" Buchalter.

Aged Woman Taken to Vets' Home Hospital

Waupaca — Mrs. Annie Cary Duggan, who will be 100 years old in May, was taken to the hospital at the Wisconsin Veterans' Home Monday for special care. Mrs. Duggan, who has lived in the annex of the hospital since she became a member of the Home seven years ago, has been ill for a few days with influenza.

Mrs. Duggan claims to have been the first white girl born in Milwaukee, although at that time the place of her birth was known as Cary's Patch. Here her parents were neighbors of Solomon Juneau. She recalls the fact that Juneau came to Milwaukee from Canada, on the same boat as did her father, and they were warm friends.

A GUARANTEE TO ERASE UNEMPLOYMENT ENTIRELY

As the befuddled "experts," whom the cynical might call quackery, continue to get in deeper upon the unemployment problem and all their rainbow promises dissolve in the sunlight of reality they reach out more and more wildly in the attempt to find refuge in schemes that are purely hair-brained.

These may seem like hard words but the hardest thing about them is their truth.

A bill has actually been introduced in the Senate to penalize employers of men who make a "more than average" use of machinery by placing an extra tax upon them, and reward such employers by reduction of taxes if they use "less than average" machinery and therefore use "more than average" labor.

This is the king's pin. It is not only the height of the ridiculous but it was introduced, apparently, in order to please the President who, to excuse his total failure in eradicating unemployment spoke in a recent message of the difficulty of "finding jobs faster than invention can take them away."

If there were a single grain of sense in this chaotic notion, why did our grandfathers a hundred years ago without inventions have depressions?

But if the principle is sound why not go about the business of wiping out the last fifty years of invention and so called progress in a manly and two fisted fashion?

Let us start with the farm. Think of how many men the farm could use if farmers would cradle their wheat as their grandfathers did and flail it on the barn floor instead of using threshing machines. The only fly in the President's ointment is that so few of those spoon fed, coddled gentlemen on the President's preferred list could be induced to work on a farm at any cost.

Another splendid, sledge hammer blow could be struck for freedom and democracy by forcing the manufacturers of our automobiles to throw out their machinery and make them by hand. Would that ever be a humdinger?

We know it would be a mighty mean man, cross eyed and hair lippled, who would ask what would become of the hundreds of thousands of skilled men who make ten to fifteen dollars a day manufacturing farm machinery and no one but an enemy of the Republic would be so low-browed as to suggest that if autos were made by hand they would be so expensive we would be forced back to horses and buggies.

We suppose that all these unhappy possibilities are to be washed out by that "more than average" expression in the law. That will give a chance to have a new board of commissars, something like the labor board of honest and delightful memory, to motion with the thumbs up or down when an industry can use a piece of machinery and when it can't or when it is rewarded and when it is penalized.

But the course of the New Deal in respect to unemployment is the invariable course of every charlatan. First he tries a little pepper to artificially stir up an appetite. When that fails he gets something a little stronger. Soon he is using pure alcohol. Before long he is handling the most pernicious drugs.

But he cannot throw up his hands. He cannot admit defeat. Even if he promised, "I will be the first to admit an error" he prefers to conceal his blunders in still more blunders hoping against hope that war or earthquake, famine, deluge or something will come to save him.

While New Deal Senators who look to the cheer leaders for a nod, spoke rapturous phrases in favor of this wonderful new idea the aged Norris demonstrated the distinction between a progressive and a liberal when he denounced the measure as one that would "put a tax upon human progress and act as a preventive of all inventions that would improve anything now in existence." The generally practical Nebraskan concluded that "the history of civilization is simply the story of inventions that have been made and put to use."

And so we have the New Deal in a nut shell. It is getting bored at civilization. If it walks the plank as do so many who become tired of life and its intricate problems it will have done more for the country than it can do with any new quackeries.

We might add to Senator Norris' statement that every invention of practical use has put more men to work, raised the standard of life, increased the public wealth and inspired succeeding generations to the utmost. As against that accomplishment the New Deal has in the field of finance and economy built some migratory camps to house the teeming thousands who wander the country over bewildered by the sugared flow of promises and the empty delivery.

It is a lovely finale: now that we have spent billions building new power plants we will smash machinery to make certain the new power plants remain idle.

REBUKING THE MINISTER TO CANADA

In solemn and measured words, the Secretary of State delivered what was described as a "harsh rebuke" to Minister Cromwell, our representative at Ottawa, for his pro-Allies speech before two British clubs recently in Toronto.

Mr. Cromwell committed an offense only because it is sound policy for a diplomat to be miserly in the expression of opinions relating to foreign nations, and particularly those at war. Fully ninety per cent of the American people sympathize with Mr. Cromwell's sentiments. He had not been particularly hostile to anyone. He observed that neutrals were being blown over by the military hurricane, and that the allied powers were fighting to save democracy. He charged that a German victory would result in an extension of totalitarian governments.

These, it is plain to be seen, are almost inescapable conclusions.

But Mr. Cromwell was utterly wrong in making them, although he did no more than repeat his master's voice, for our noble President, until very recently, had been making exactly the same statements.

And the President was just as wrong in making them as Mr. Cromwell, even though the statements in themselves be accurate and in keeping with the conclusions of the people.

Indeed, Mr. Cromwell's faux-pas serves to emphasize the series of blunders committed by his distinguished chief.

Any man in charge of diplomatic relations must be strong-willed enough to resist the mellowing of wines at a banquet table, or of applause at a public gathering. The President is more to blame for Mr. Cromwell's blunder than the latter, since Mr. Roosevelt set the example.

An example, by the way, that has not only plagued America ever since, but has paralyzed our arm and diminished our prestige in respect to our ability to urge or engineer peace.

PICKING THE BONES

While sympathetic to Britain's cause in the European war, the United States is her foe in another war which doesn't lack for intensity even though no guns are being fired.

South America is the battlefield for as fierce an economic war as has ever been fought anywhere in the world. It's a three-way struggle with Japan, England and the United States scrapping over the trade that Germany enjoyed with South American countries before the Allies set up their sea blockade.

These are no bare bones that are being picked, either. There is plenty of meat on them, totalling about $200,000,000 annually. In 1938, the last year before war plans began to upset trade, Germany sold about $65,000,000 worth of goods to Brazil, $59,000,000 to Argentina, $18,000,000 to Mexico, $24,000,000 to Chile, $17,000,000 to Colombia, $14,000,000 to Uruguay, $15,000,000 to Venezuela and $12,000,000 to Peru.

The United States with 9,000,000 unemployed, England with 1,500,000 unemployed and Japan with an acute need to provide exchange for the goods she must have are all naturally quite hopeful of stepping into the place vacated by Germany. The United States finds itself at a disadvantage, at least to Britain, in this war. England produces only enough food to feed her people six months of the year and therefore can buy large quantities of agricultural goods from South America. She can for instance take plenty of Argentina's beef. The United States cannot provide this kind of a market to South American countries because she grows more than enough food for her own needs and, in fact, has surpluses which she also would like to sell abroad.

The English can be expected to press their advantage. They tell the South American countries: If you buy our manufactured goods we will buy your agricultural goods and livestock; if you don't, we'll close this market to you.

And with Japan being able to sell cheaper because of its cheap labor, the United States is the under-dog in the fight.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THE CANARY

At night he sits, all golden in the lamplight,
As if he meditated, satisfied
With his long ringing day. His wings are folded.
His lyric gift of song is put aside.

He looks like an imprisoned beak of sunshine
In a bright cage, and even in the night
When he is quiet, just to gaze upon him
Is to be filled with wonder and delight.

For in that tiny brain a spark so godlike
Exists in silence doubt. The clear notes rise
And bear me on their innocent enchantment
To the white clouds of my own Paradise.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—It is no longer any secret that Jim Farley is definitely lined up with the anti-third terms. But not generally known is the fact that Jim actually plans a show-down with Roosevelt regarding the president's own plans, and this showdown will come before the Democratic convention at Chicago.

Jim made up his mind to do this about the same time he issued his recent Massachusetts bombshell labeled, "My name will be presented to the national convention."

Democratic insiders had known for some time that Farley was cold to the idea of the president running again, but he side-stepped a positive commitment. He always declared that he was confident the president had no intention to seek reelection.

In the past month, with Roosevelt slates being entered in various states under obvious White House guidance, Farley's aloofness has hardened to out-and-out hostility. From being on the fence he has slid over definitely to the anti-third term group.

Not only will Jim aggressively fight a third term, but he is prepared to denounce it publicly. However, he will not talk out until he has had a showdown with Roosevelt, at which time he will insist on a categorical "yes" or "no" answer.

If there is no reply, or an unsatisfactory one, then Jim is prepared to express his opposition publicly. He is aware that such a statement would play into the hands of the GOP and that it may mean finale for him politically, but he feels that he owes it to the Democratic party and the country frankly to state his views.

The Massachusetts statement was Farley's opening gun in his plan to smoke out Roosevelt. From now on, regardless of their close ties and their still warm personal friendship (as far as Farley is concerned), they are two rival candidates.

Note—Farley was absolutely sincere when he declared that he was "in no combination with anyone." Recent reports that he was secretly allied with Garner are unfounded. Privately Jim thinks Garner is getting nowhere fast. His own personal ticket is Hull and Farley.

FARM-DIPLOMAT WALLACE
Following publication of a poll showing increased farm support for Henry Wallace, a newsman asked him: "Does this have any effect on your personal political ambitions, Mr. Secretary?"

Wallace evaded: "I noticed the poll indicated Pennsylvania was 51 per cent Republican."

"Mr. Secretary," persisted the newsman, "did you hear my question?"

"No," said Wallace, grinning. Then he added, "I'm trying to give you something of real interest."

CAPITAL CHAFF

When the three trustees of Associated Gas and Electric undertook to take over the holding companies of the billion-dollar utility system, they found no office, no clerks, no books—just two safety deposit boxes in Wilmington, Del., and Ithaca, N. Y. . . .

Lieutenants of Senator Styles Bridges saw an omen in the defeat of Governor Francis Murphy for a place on the New Hampshire delegation to the Republican convention. Murphy is credited with third-term ambitions, but like Roosevelt has refused to declare himself. . . . Representative Joe Smith of West Virginia, chairman of the house mines committee, has one of the oddest political records in congress. In the twelve years he has held his seat he has never made a campaign speech.

MCNUTT INCOME TAXES

The McNutt income tax investigation has boiled down to the problem of smoking out big, jovial Bowman ("Bo") Elder, ex-treasurer of the American Legion and finance man for the McNutt forces in Indiana.

Elder was the man who received the funds from the Two Per Cent club (by which state employees gave the party 2 per cent of their salary), and he also knew—or the treasury thinks he knew—where these funds were disbursed.

It is the claim of the McNutt group that while large funds were received, they were all paid out for political purposes, and for this reason no income taxes were payable. In fact, McNutt himself, then a state employee, did not even file an income tax return.

However, the treasury insists on getting details on how the funds were spent and Bo Elder is the key to this puzzle. They are waiting for him to talk, and he, in turn, says he will not be made the scapegoat.

Meanwhile, McNutt forces, jittery over delay and anxious to push the campaign of their candidate, demand that the treasury either exonerate or indict. A break in the present impasse is coming soon.

Note—"Tuck" Stanley, McNutt's discouraged publicity expert, has resigned.

BORAH STATUE

The state of Idaho plans to enshrine the memory of its late great Senator William E. Borah under the lofty dome of the national capitol, where he served for more than 30 years.

The state will fill its quota of statues in Statuary Hall (the original chamber of the House of Representatives, where each state is allowed to place two statues). T. . . sculptor has not yet been chosen.

Borah will be the second senator selected by Idaho for this honor. His other statue is that of Senator George L. Shoup, a pioneer who was the first governor of Idaho when the territory was admitted to statehood in July, 1890. The Shoup statue is the tallest in Statuary Hall, standing 13 feet.

Note—Mrs. Borah, accompanied by one of her sisters, soon will sail for Hawaii for a rest. Her plans after returning are indefinite; she is still undecided whether to reside in Washington or go back to Idaho.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

A Bystander In Washington

temporarily pointed out on the floor of the House that Mr. Ickes didn't know his diapers, demonstrated pinning on infant panties with one pin. Opponents called Mr. Hoffman old-fashioned.

The squabble spread. Now the capital is divided into camps and is eager to demonstrate opposition fallacies on every occasion. There are one-pinnars, two-pinnars, three-pinnars, square-riggers and advocates of the flying triangle.

Hospital baby wards and nurseries, which should be final arbiters in such a matter, refuse to enter the fracas. It's a political fight, they say, and in political fights there's no room for science.

Washington traffic is a mess. The capital ought to be setting an example for the United States, but instead it offers a driving problem that would make breaking trail in the African bush seem like a joy-ride.

There are so many rules and regulations that not even the veteran tax drivers can remember them. The regulations change throughout the day. At 4 o'clock you get fined for making a U-turn where it was O. K. at 3. West-bound streets become eastbound at the turn of the clock.

Many corners have so many signs, it takes 15 minutes to read them. Being a capital traffic cop must be one of the most discouraging jobs in the U. S. Not because of all the rules and regulations, but because every time you hand out a ticket, you stick out your neck.

Nearly every one in Washington has pulled or he wouldn't be there. In the last two weeks, 125 traffic tickets were "fixed." Add to that all the violations the police didn't give tickets for because they knew it would be useless.

Examples:

(1) Man parking in driveway turned out to be a foreign embassy official. Ticket torn up. Reason, diplomatic immunity.

(2) Rep. Dash-Dot requested ticket handed young lady be changed to warning. Granted.

(3) Man parked in restricted zone turned out to be official collecting Finnish relief funds. Ticket changed to warning. Reason, it's a worthy cause.

That's a rough idea. Traffic police badges here should bear the motto: All is futile. Invitations to tourists should read: See your capital—but on foot!

Goobertorial: It's time for us to revise our opinion of the peanut. Thumbing through a batch of recent Federal tax refunds at the Treasury department, I came across the notation that the Columbian Peanut Co., Norfolk, Va., received a refund for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1938, amounting to $24,832.66.

Considering that that's just the refund, it looks as if the peanut business isn't exactly what you'd call a peanut business.

Now the Keller delegate ticket announces that if the Progressives support its slate, Senator Bob La Follette need not fear that the New Deal Democrats will oppose him in his reelection campaign.

That, on the face of it, is a big concession. However, the LaFollettes have exactly the same assurance from the Broughton group, so that the choice remains even nevertheless.

If capital observers were asked to make a prediction, most of them would suggest the plausible possibility that the Progressives will divide their vote between the two slates. Some Progressive New Dealers don't care much for some of the Democratic politicians attached to the Broughton camp. But others owe it something for the patronage which they have been able to wrangle from it.

Assuming such a division, it appears likely that the Broughton ticket, or most of it, will succeed, principally because of the tremendous advantage afforded by the extensive patronage machine built up in Wisconsin during the last seven years, which is now completely under the control of the national committee man who is making the best possible use of it.

Note: Some persons attach some significance to the fact that the most vociferous New Dealer in Wisconsin, Progressive William T. Evans, of the capital Progressive group, has studiously refrained from public discussion of the rivalry between the Broughton and Keller New Deal groups.

The dispute between the organized teaching profession in Wisconsin and the association of local school boards over the teacher's tenure law is becoming more bitter. Newspapers will be circulated with propaganda for both sides this week as the date for the advisory popular referendum on the tenure law draws near. The teachers feel particularly aggrieved, their spokesmen say, because of the fact that the "whole state will be voting on a question which affects only the people in specific localities.

IRONY

It is ironic, in the opinion of persons interested in state highway affairs, that the administration officials last week should have issued announcements at the same moment of increased highway taxes and decreased highway improvement expenditures.

While the governor's office last week released details of the skin-tight highway program in years, the highway commission contemplated record collections of gasoline taxes, while Colonel George W. Rickman, head of the motor vehicle division, predicted a cool million dollar rise in auto license fees due to an increased number of new cars purchased this year.

THERE'S GRATITUDE FOR YOU

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—The great mystery of the day in state politics is the direction the Progressive vote will take in the delegate elections on April 2. It is generally assumed that the LaFollette Progressives will vote in the Democratic column for one or the other of the pro - Roosevelt delegate tickets. It is doubtful, however, whether any one can predict with even a fair degree of certainty which slate will be the choice of the party.

Now the Keller delegate ticket announces that if the Progressives support its slate, Senator Bob La Follette need not fear that the New Deal Democrats will oppose him in his reelection campaign.

That, on the face of it, is a big concession.

Farley Candidacy Making Progress, Lawrence Claims

Postmaster Today Most Important Influence for Harmony in Party

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The suggestion made the other day that Postmaster General Farley should resign his chairmanship of the Democratic National committee because he is now an avowed candidate for the presidency has not been received among Democratic leaders as either wise or practical.

In the first place, if the "spirit of the Hatch law" is to be observed, then there might have to be resignations all around. Thus Vice President Garner is vice chairman of the Democratic National committee and as for candidates, Paul McNutt occupies the office of social security administrator, and Robert Jackson is attorney general.

As for President Roosevelt himself, he has conferences regularly with leaders in the Democratic party, some of whom are members of the Democratic National committee.

To put a taboo on all political activity while holding high office would leave the Democratic party without candidates. As for the Hatch law it was not intended to cover the officials who hold offices requiring confirmation by the senate, namely policy-making jobs.

Precedent There is precedent in American politics for cabinet officers engaging actively in pursuit of presidential nominations. William Howard Taft was secretary of war in the cabinet of President Theodore Roosevelt when the latter boosted him in the spring of 1908 for the Republican nomination. Likewise Herbert Hoover was secretary of commerce, not only during the pre-convention campaign but until after he was nominated.

The idea that Mr. Farley as head of the Democratic National committee might use his position in some way to advance his own presidential candidacy is not well-founded, for the postmaster general is too shrewd a politician to try to get delegates that way. It would react against him. As a matter of fact the members of the national committee only in some instances happen to be influential in delegate-choosing and Mr. Farley would be the last man in the world to do anything unethical in connection with his own candidacy.

Since the postmaster general made his flat statement that he was in the presidential race to stay, his stock has risen perceptibly. His friends say his firmness has been widely acclaimed and that his statement made in Massachusetts was not in any sense hostile to anybody else's candidacy, not even the president's aspirations. For the truth is Mr. Farley does not believe Mr. Roosevelt will be a third-term candidate and hence the postmaster general felt that when he entered the Massachusetts primaries he ought to make it clear he was not engaging in some adroit maneuvering on behalf of the White House.

Influence for Harmony

Postmaster General Farley is today the most important influence for harmony in the Democratic party. He has not made any combinations with or against anybody else. He knows personally more local political leaders in America than any national chairman has known in the present generation of politics. He has a faculty for making and retaining friendships, and it would not make the least difference to his own candidacy whether he was chairman or not. It would make a great deal of difference to the Democratic party, however, and to the next nominee for the man who keeps the party organization intact between now and convention time is the one who requires an unusual personality and a knack for harmony. Mr. Farley has both.

In a few days the postmaster general will leave for the south where he will make a number of speeches. Not a single syllable will be uttered in criticism of the president for whom he has the highest affection and to whom he feels a deep sense of loyalty. But Mr. Farley does not

Clapper Sees G.O.P. Drift Toward 1936-Type Campaign

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—I have a letter from a Republican whose profession keeps him in close touch both with politicians and with currents of public opinion, and he is much disturbed at the way things are going in the party. He recalls a passage out of Senator Hoar's memoirs to the effect that in the Republican national convention of 1888 Chauncey DePew turned thumbs down on the man picked for president and practically dictated the choice.

"It seems," this Republican adds, "that we are going back to the old ways fast, with one man dictating the Democratic choice and the prospects of a backroom conference picking the other. Wonder what T.R., Doliver and their brethren would say?"

In that last sentence, my friend put his finger on the trouble. There is no T.R., no Doliver, no elder La Follette—his two able sons gave up the Republican party as a bad job—and no other men of like force to provide the yeast in the Republican party. Hiram Johnson is tired. Norris has left the party. Borah is gone.

A little group of insiders who know what they want are running the party. They are raising the money—yes, I mean my old friend Ernest T. Weir and a number of others. At the rate the party is going, it will be little more than a corporation holding company by the time they get through with it. If a presidential aspirant seems to show any slightly tolerant attitude toward reforms that have been undertaken, he is apt to be quietly advised to pipe down and not go New Dealish. Some of this group thought Alf Landon was too liberal. He had a lot of trouble with the Pennsylvania organization in 1936 because he wanted to play up the progressive-minded Gifford Pinchot as one of his speakers.

Insiders Figure They Can Ride In On Tide

A few weeks ago, about the time he was made Republican finance chairman, Mr. Weir attended a secret conference of an inside group of the National Association of Manufacturers and was one of several who led in the discussion of a huge billboard advertising and publicity campaign for this summer during the presidential campaign. The idea is to handle it under the auspices of the N. A. M. One of the major themes would be something along the line of "Restore the American way of life." It would be "non-political" of course. Yes indeed! You remember in 1936 the lady Republican who each day wrote that there were only so many more days in which to save the American way of life by electing Governor Landon.

What it all looks like is a hookup between the Republican party and a large business group, represented in the N. A. M., to repeat the type of campaign used in 1936 with spectacular lack of success.

At the moment there isn't much else in the Republican picture. Such progressives as remain in the party are on the sidelines, watching the party drift into another campaign under the same kind of inside Liberty League leadership that ran the 1936 campaign.

Republican insiders figure that the times are moving their way, that

Schoolmasters to Discuss Salaries At Valley Meeting

Three viewpoints on teachers' salaries will be discussed at a meeting of the Fox River Valley Schoolmasters association Friday, April 5, at the Retlaw hotel at Fond du Lac. The teachers' viewpoint will be discussed by Marvin Olson, Neenah, the superintendent's viewpoint by Hugh Bonar, Manitowoc superintendent of schools. "Matching Salary Practices with Salary Theories," will be presented by LeRoy Peterson, Wisconsin Education association research director.

Educators from the cities of the Fox River Valley are expected to attend the meeting.

Technocrats Hear Talk by Hugo Redlin

The Appleton section of Technocracy Inc., last night heard Hugo Redlin, education chairman for the unit, talk on "America's Paradox." M. J. Wasserbach, director of the section, presided.

It's another 1920, that they can nominate anybody and ride in on the tide and shoot the works when they get to Washington.

Alf Landon Only One Strong Enough To Oppose It

I see just one man in the Republican party who is strong enough to speak out against this drift and to rally those who are opposed to making the Republican party the tail of the N. A. M. That is Alf Landon.

I don't know whether he is interested in the fight. It would be rough. He would be accused of creating dissension and of injuring the party's chances. He would have to take considerable pounding from men who are raising the party money, who control its national committee headquarters, and who expect to control the convention choice at Philadelphia.

The Republicans can win this election only with votes that went to Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936. Unless Landon, or someone like him, will undertake to exercise leadership in this situation, there seems little hope that anything will turn the Republican party from its reactionary destination.

A PARTY to be given by Girl Scout leaders for council members at 7:30 this evening at the Scout house, the leaders will demonstrate projects which can be used in troop advancement and badge work. The girls are learning folk dancing, and recently mastered a mountain and Indian dance which they will present at a mothers' party in April.

City Government Explained At Meeting of Voters League

MEMBERS of the League of Women Voters had a primary lesson in city taxation Monday night when Mayor John Goodland, Jr., discussed city government and its functions before the group at Appleton Vocational school. The meeting was under the auspices of the department of government and its operation with Mrs. Abraham Sigman in charge.

Announcement was made of the League, sponsored candidates' dinner Thursday night at Hotel Appleton. The dinner is open to all interested citizens, league members and candidates for election and reservations not mailed in today may be telephoned to Mrs. William Nemacheck, finance chairman, Wednesday morning.

Mayor Goodland gave a statistical report on city taxes, answering questions from the floor and supplying various data to present an adequate background of the tax situation in the city. In discussing the question of taxes, the mayor quoted from an article by Henry Traxler, city manager of Janesville, pointing out the differences in city government today and 10 years ago. Mr. Goodland said that modern government is being handled by boards, committees and commissions. Not only state and federal government impose rules and regulations on municipalities, but within the local government itself exist similar commissions and regulatory bodies, he said.

Mr. Goodland explained that in Appleton the council has no say over the school system, which is run by an elected board of education. The Vocational school has its own governing board; the water works is under a commission, the library works under the library board and the parks are handled by a park board.

In discussing the actual control the common council has over tax expenditure, Mr. Goodland said that the council controls $440,000 out of the $1,400,000 spent on the annual tax roll.

At a meeting of the Know Your Town group of the league Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Abraham Sigman, 1306 E. Jardine street, Mrs. E. W. St. Clair reported on the population of Appleton based on the census and on interviews with old settlers. She stated that percentage of foreign born persons and discussed the race situation.

Mrs. W. H. Bowman gave a report on early settlers in Appleton, told of the Gitzon home and early land grants, and the beginnings of Lawrance college. She told of some of the descendants of early settlers still living here.

Mrs. Edward Steenis discussed the school situation in Appleton.

Head of County Schools Is Speaker at Rotary Meeting

Clintonville — County Superintendent of Schools Carl Bacher of Waupaca was the speaker at the Monday noon luncheon of the Rotary club at Hotel Marston. He explained the new legislation affecting rural schools. One of the most helpful changes, he said, is the so-called small schools law. By an act of the last legislature the aid for one-room schools of ten pupils or more was substantially increased. Previously there was state aid of $4.55 per child annually, while the new legislation provides $25 per child from the state and $25 per child from the county. This decreases the financial burden on districts having small enrollments at their schools, he said.

Another beneficial piece of legislation, Mr. Bacher continued, was an act giving the state superintendent authority to rule in regard to the district in which a child should attend school. Previously this power had been vested solely in the town boards. The county school official spoke briefly on transportation problems for children.

Other guests at the club meeting were Charles Robbins of Milwaukee.

Apply Spiritual Law to Preserve Liberty, Club Told

People Can't Comprehend Past's Rapid Progress, Taylor Says

Neenah — Declaring that Americans are living in a fairy land but because progress has been so rapid they can't comprehend it, Carl Taylor, Milwaukee, suggested in a talk at the noon luncheon of the Neenah club Monday that to be happy, "We must make the spiritual law work for us as we did the material law."

Stating that the marvelous dreams of a century ago are commonplace happenings in America today, Taylor said that Americans now are fighting each other, not to produce but to get what has been produced.

"Unless we learn the spiritual law so that we can take care of all the people, the world and even the United States will disintegrate to a measure," Taylor stated.

Talking on Americanism, Taylor claimed that one-third of the people living in the United States don't believe that it's a good place in which to live because they don't understand what a good country this is and what magnificent progress has been made in the last generations.

Fears Loss of Faith

"One-half of the civilized world today has changed its governmental system from one which consisted of freedom to one which has no freedom because they lost faith. That is what one-third of the people in America are doing, losing faith."

"If we analyze America, we find that it is a good place in which to live. In America, we have four out of five automobiles of the world, more ice boxes, 98 per cent of the washing machines, 80 per cent of the silk, one-half of the railroads and one-half of the telephones. The average American today lives better than any king 20 years ago."

"The malcontents who parade our streets today, dissatisfied with our form of government, carrying swastikas and the sickle and hammer, should be told about our America. They should be told that even those people on relief, getting public charity, in America are getting a higher standard of living than if they were successful people in England and Germany and other European countries," Taylor said.

"There is no limit or horizon to our future, but in more than half the world today there are people who believe that hate is more powerful than love, power is over persuasion, darkness over light and selfishness over generosity."

"The world today is nearer a complete explosion than any time in past history with its potential possibilities of greater destruction, and that's what'll happen if you don't apply the spiritual law to the physical life," he said.

8 Badger Boxers Are Accepted for NCAA Tournament

U. W. Completes Dual Schedule Friday Against Washington State

MADISON —(P)—All eight members of the University of Wisconsin boxing team have been accepted as competitors in the National Collegiate Athletic association tournament at Sacramento, Calif., April 4, 5 and 6.

This news, received by Dr. W. J. Bleckwenn, of Madison, mid-western representative of the N. C. A. A. board, was communicated today to the Badger mittmen, who still have an engagement with Washington State here Friday night before completing their dual meet schedule for the season.

Coach John Walsh had filed entries with L. E. Toomey, tournament chairman, some time ago and word of committee action was eagerly awaited.

Wisconsin had a complete team in the 1939 tourney at Madison and emerged with four championships. Two Badger titlists, Captain Omar Crocker, 145, and Woody Swancutt, 155, qualified automatically for the Sacramento meet, along with Neck Lee, heavyweight, who went to the 1939 finals.

The other two Wisconsin champions were Truman Torgerson, 175, and Gene Rankin, 135. Torgerson was graduated last June and Rankin is scholastically ineligible.

Won Five of Six

The Badger mittmen, who have won five of their six matches this season, losing only to Louisiana State at Baton Rouge, were given a rest by Coach Walsh yesterday. They will be given a workout this afternoon and will taper off with a light drill tomorrow in preparation for Friday's bouts.

Pairings for the match began shaping up, meanwhile, with word from Coach Lee Deeter that Washington State would be represented at 145 pounds by Glen Ousley and at 135 by Captain Les Coffman, who won the Pacific coast conference lightweight championship recently. Their opponents will be Crocker and Warren Jollymore, respectively.

Other Washington State entries probably will be Merle Vannoy, 120; Byron Hosteder, 127; Ben Drake, 155; Stanley Dilatash, 165; Fred Spiegelberger, 175, and Louis Allen, heavyweight.

86 Legion Juniors In Major Leagues

Fourteen Listed Among This Year's Rookies, Survey Shows

Indianapolis —(P)—The American Legion said today a survey of spring training camps had shown at least 14 one-time Legion junior baseball stars starting in the major leagues this year.

This, Legion headquarters said, brought to 86 the players who have graduated from junior baseball into the majors, including Bob Feller of Cleveland and Joe Gordon of the New York Yankees.

Of this year's recruits, the American league got nine and the National league five. The Legion made public this list:

American — Boston, Bill Butland and Paul Campbell; Chicago, Bob Kennedy and Donald Kolloway; Cleveland, Winslow Francis Stroupe; Detroit, Harold Newhouse; Philadelphia, John Babich; St. Louis, Robert Swift; Washington, Jimmy Pofahl.

National — Brooklyn, Charlie Gilbert; Chicago, Dominic Delleandrea and Soup Campbell; Cincinnati, Myron McCormick; Pittsburgh, Dode Schultz.

Mrs. Sue Lambau Is Granted a Divorce

Green Bay —(P)—Mrs. Sue Lambau was granted a divorce late yesterday in circuit court from E. L. (Curly) Lambau, coach of the Green Bay Packers professional football team. They were married at Waukegan, Ill., June 20, 1935.

Lambau was the plaintiff in the divorce action but his wife was granted the divorce on her counter claim. She was given the custody of their son, Earl Jr., age 2, and $25 a month for his support. By stipulation, read into the record, Lambau will pay a settlement of $6,750, plus $125 already paid in attorney fees.

Lambau charged in his complaint that incompatibility of the couple made it impossible for them to live together. In Mrs. Lambau's claim she said he refused to

Pro Golfers Association Considering Hall of Fame

GREENSBORO, N. C. —(P)—Baseball was played first at Cooperstown, N. Y., and Cooperstown is the site of baseball's hall of fame. Golf in the United States was played first at St. Andrews in Yonkers, N. Y., and that would seem the logical spot for a golf "hall of fame."

Golf could use such an institution and it will have one if present plans of Professional Golf Association officials go through.

In Britain there'd be no need for a hall of fame. Over there, memories are long and heroes live forever. In this country memories are short and heroes supplant each other at a dizzy pace. Already Francis Ouimet and Chick Evans are little more than names in the record books. Yet Ouimet was the man who brought golf out of the social register into the tabloids. Evans was the first man to win the amateur and the open in the same year (1916) and his open record of 286 stood up for 20 years.

If the 3,000,000 American golfers were to vote today for the first contingent to enter the hall of fame, certainly Ouimet and Evans would have to be among them.

With them, one would say, should go Walter Hagen, winner of two United States and four British opens and five P.G.A. championships, four of them in a row, and still the most colorful figure in the game; Gene Sarazen, who won his first title in 1922, his last in 1934, and at 38 is still good enough to be only a few strokes off the lead when and if the Greensboro open is resumed; and Bobby Jones, who in case anyone has forgotten, won 13 United States and British championships between 1923 and 1930.

Boys Team Will be Guest at Women's AAU Cage Tourney

St. Joseph, Mo. —(P)—In spring even a young woman's fancy often turns to things other than basketball.

The women's national AAU tournament opens today and the guest of honor will be a boy's team. The high geared quintet from nearby Tarkio college, which swished to the national intercollegiate title at Kansas City 10 days ago has promised to attend the opening ceremonies.

Meet Dominic Dallessandro Cubs' Candidate For Top Rookie Is A Little Man With A Big Bat

BY ROBERT MYERS
Avalon, Calif.—(P)—The rookie of the year may be a squat little Italian who blasted his way to the batting championship of the Pacific Coast league last year—Dominic Dallessandro.

The 5 foot 6 inch Dominic waged a terrific hitting duel with another Dominican—DiMaggio—for the coast loop leadership and won out with an average of .368. The Chicago Cubs thought enough of his performance to pay San Diego $25,000 for him.

One night during the training season here the 26-year-old recruit, surrounded by several other newcomers in the Cub camp, made it plain that his short stature hampers him not one bit.

"Why should it?" he demanded. "I've got all it takes up here (he moved his shoulders and bared his powerful hands and wrists) and if I can hit in one league, I can hit in another."

As a matter of fact, Dominic's shortness was more of a handicap to pitchers last year than to him. The hurlers couldn't find him at the plate and Dallessandro drew 92 walks, a coast league record.

The stocky Dominican broke in with Reading, Pa., his home town, in 1933. He'd been a bat boy for the club in previous seasons.

In 1935 he went to Syracuse for two years. The Boston Red Sox bought him in 1937, and he promptly displayed a prolonged hitting slump for the first time—and last time to date—in his career. He had never fallen below .317 before but with Boston he plummeted to .231 in 68 games.

DOMINIC DALLESSANDRO: Not hampered by short stature

"I got off bad with Boston and never was able to get back, but it won't happen this year. I've been trying too long to get up there to let this chance slip."

Dallessandro, a very serious player, keeps himself in good shape, is easy to handle and plays ball because he likes it.

There's another Italian rookie with the Cubs who seems equally determined. He's Julio Bonetti, leading coast league pitcher for Los Angeles last year, who failed to make the grade with the Browns in 1937. Julio thinks he's all set for the major leagues now.

Bonetti, whose sinker ball brought 20 wins and only five losses last season, said he had better control now, was heavier, wiser and "my sinker is something I didn't even have with the Browns."

These two Italian boys may prove a big help to Gabby Hartnett and his Cubs.

Training Camp Notes

By the Associated Press
AREDO, Tex.—There's a hard job in store for Fred Haney when the time comes to reduce the St. Louis Browns, pitching staff. Until he can test them against major league opposition he won't name even a limited list of players certain to be with the club when the season opens.

Los Angeles — Gabby Hartnett, Chicago Cubs' manager who should know all about big league catching, rates all three of his rookie receivers as big-league possibilities. Bob Collins, from Los Angeles, is listed for the third string job supporting Gabby and Al Todd this season.

Clyde McCullough looks good except for weak hitting, while 19-year-old Al Montgomery is considered the best prospect of all, though he's a year or so away from the majors.

Winter Haven, Fla. — Paul Dean, who was planning to retire a few weeks ago, now has hopes of sticking with the New York Giants. He tried his arm pitching to batters yesterday, then remarked, "So far, so good. My arm feels great and the ball was alive."

Orlando, Fla.—Manager Bucky Harris of the Washington Senators has about given up hope of getting any star baseball players from Cuba. The current cause of his disappointment are Gilberto Torres, Rene Montezuelo and Roberto Ortiz. Alejandro Carrasquel, from Venezuela, hasn't pleased him either.

Bradenton, Fla.—Off the record, Brooklyn's Dodgers are the leading long distance clouters of the "Grape-fruit League." Six homers against Detroit yesterday—two each by Joe Vosmik and Peeewe Reese—brought their total to 23 this spring. But the teams they have played have hit 21. It's all explained by the right field fence at their Clearwater field—290 feet from the plate and low, with a wind that usually blows that direction.

Hollywood, Calif. — The home-bound Chicago White Sox face a long exhibition schedule without two of their important members, southpaw Thornton Lee and third baseman Eric McNair. Both have some aches and are expected to be idle several weeks.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — There may be a question whether Martin Marion, St. Louis Cardinals shortstop, is an asset or a liability. Against the Giants the rookie committed three errors, but made a single and double and scored a run.

Winter Haven, Fla. — Starting a roundabout journey back to New York with today's game against the Giants, the world-champion Yankees discovered they have not yet put their regular team on the field for an exhibition game. Joe DiMaggio, Red Rolfe and Bill Dickey haven't played much and Joe Gordon has been out five days with a cold and a bruised thigh.

San Francisco — Fern Lee Bill's valiant efforts to avoid returning to the minors is attracting the Pittsburgh Pirates' attention. The 27-year-old out-

The board also decided to allow junior golfers 14 to 21 years of age to take out junior memberships regardless of whether their parents are members of the club.

Fred C. Heinrich, recently elected president of the club to succeed F. E. Sensesbrenner, has announced the following committees and chairmen:

House: Bob Zaunmeyer.
Membership: Elmer Honkamp and R. W. Mahony.

Cubs Suffer First Loss in 8 Starts

Charlie Root, Bruins' Veteran, Hurls First Four Innings

Los Angeles —(P)—Two Chicago Cubs pitchers were pounded for 13 hits as the Cubs' Los Angeles farmhands beat the National leaguers, 6 to 3, in an exhibition game yesterday.

The Cubs, suffering their first loss in their eight exhibitions, made only four hits off the coast league hurler.

Charlie Root, veteran Chicago right-hander, gave up three runs in the first four innings and young Ken Raffensberger as many more in the last five.

SKET'S OUTSTANDING GUNNERS OF 1939
By Jimmy Robinson

15-YEAR-OLD Tulsa, Oklahoma, schoolboy was sket's outstanding gunner last season. Bobby Parker is the name.

This bright-eyed 100-pound youngster, who won the Oklahoma state sket championship two years ago, gave the greatest sket shots in the nation a demonstration they will never forget at the National sket tournament at San Francisco last August.

Bobby started off the week in top form when he easily outclassed the Junior field by crashing 100 straight to take this championship. Then came the National Individual Championship which is decided on 250 targets. When the smoke had cleared in this event, it was found that little Bobby was tied up with four other nationally known gunners, Walt Dinger, Tulsa; Dudley Shallock, Providence, Rhode Island; George Scott and Joe Puckett of Fresno, California, for the championship. They had each broken 247 out of 250. Walt Dinger eventually won the championship with a 25 straight, but Bobby went 199 out of 200 for second place.

Bobby shot well during the entire tournament. In fact he was the individual star. He won the All-around Championship by a wide margin, meaning that he was high shooter on the entire program, with 334 out of 550. He also teamed up with Walt Dinger to win the National Two-Man competition—score 494 x 500.

Bobby became nationally known at sket two years ago when he broke 200 straight targets to win the Oklahoma State Sket Championship. No state sket champion had ever broken 200 straight to win this championship.

There are others who shared the sket spotlight with Parker in 1939. We refer to Dick Shaughnessy, the 18-year-old Boston high schooler who averaged 9910 to top high average sket gunners of North America last season. His average was the greatest of all time.

We can't overlook Don Sperry of Flint, Michigan, who turned in two major victories at the National Sket tourney staged at San Francisco in August: Walter Dinger, Tulsa, the National Sket Champion and shooting partner of Bobby Parker; Graydon Hubbard, Elwood, Indiana, the Mid-West Champion and holder of the world's registered long run record; Grant Ilse, Beverly Hills, California, a major winner in '39 and last but not least, Alex Kerr sports shop owner in Beverly Hills, California, who won the Lordship tourney last June at Bridgeport, Conn., largest sket shoot of the entire year.

for the losers was S. Otto with her 175 game and 394 series.

Kamps Tavern increased its league lead with a 2-game win over Mueller Refrigerator Service. V. Homblette led the winners with a 159 game and 400 series while C. Blong had 419 and 162 to top the losers.

UNSUING YANKEE

—by Phil Berube

Dodgers are Sound Only in One Department, Talbot Says

BY GAYLE TALBOT
LEAWARD, FLA. (P)—Somewhat earlier than usual, it becomes necessary to tell the ever-hopeful Brooklyn fans to "wait until next year."

This is a painful duty, because the Dodgers got their following even more excited than usual by climbing into third place in last year's National league chase and the Flatbush fans are going to be loud in their disappointment if the team doesn't do at least as well this time.

But that's the point. They might have difficulty staying that high. With all their new players, including outfielders Joe Vosmik and Roy Cullenbine and the little squirrel of a shortstop, "Peeewe" Reese, the Dodgers still are really sound in only one department, their infield.

Manager Leo Durocher, who imported and exported outfielders like a commission merchant all last season, still hasn't found a combination that suits him. All he knows for sure at this point is that the slowing Vosmik, purchased from Boston for $23,000, will hold down left field.

Despairing of finding an established slugger to patrol the center garden, Durocher is thinking seriously of starting the race with 20-year-old Charlie Gilbert from Nashville in that important spot.

If Cullenbine can hit better than he did with Detroit, he is a cinch for the third out post, for he is a ball hawk and owns a fire throwing arm. Otherwise, Durocher must fall back on men like Ernie Koy and Jim Rippke. Both are good, run-of-the-mine outfielders, but not the kind of men that Brooklyn needs to make it a pennant contender.

Everybody around here seems to think that Reese, the $50,000 kid from Louisville, is on his way right now toward shortstop immortality. That is quite a burden to place on an undersized youngster only two years out of the church league, but it must be admitted that Reese looks like a natural.

The other cogs of a slick infield are Dolf Camilli at first, Pete Coscarart (who drove across the winning run in the all-star game) at second, and Cookie Lavagetto at third.

Whether the Dodgers will have good pitching, or only ordinary, appears to depend upon Whitlow Wyatt's ability to field bunts and cover first base with his gimp knee.

Slippery Rock Peds Announce Schedule

Slippery Rock, Pa.—(P)—Slippery Rock State Teachers gridders, among the unbeaten last season, will play eight games next fall. Geneva is back on the schedule with Detroit Tech added for the first time. Home games are with Shippensburg Teachers Sept. 28, Indiana (Pa.) State Teachers Oct. 19, Grove City Oct. 26, and Hit Nov. 2. The rockets go to Westminster Oct. 5, Detroit Tech Oct. 12, Edinboro Teachers Nov. 9 and Geneva Nov. 16.

Bunny Oakes Quits Colorado U. Post

Coached Two Title Teams. Developed Whizzer White in Five Years

Bould., Colo.—(P)—Colorado University is hunting a successor to Bunny Oakes, who coached two Big Seven conference football champions and all-America Whizzer White in his five years here.

Oakes' successor will have virtually all the 35 players who signed a petition accusing the 41-year-old mentor of abusing their rights and demanding that the regents dismiss him. He denounced the players charges as "utterly untrue."

Oakes and President Robert L. Stearns agreed yesterday to terminate his five-year contract, which had three years to go.

Harry Carlson, director of athletics, said "Mr. Oakes' successor may be someone on our present staff. Frank Potts coaches the grid ends and the track team. Forrest B. (Frosty) Cox is baseball coach and backfield mentor."

It was understood Oakes' salary was $5,000 a year. An informed unquotable source said Oakes accepted $6,480 as settlement.

Adolph Kiefer Claims Backstroke Record

Chicago — (P)—Adolph Kiefer claimed a new world backstroke record today—57.2 seconds for 100 yards.

The Chicago swimmer churned the waters of the Chicago Towers club pool in that time last night on the first leg of a 300 yard medley relay.

The time bettered his own recognized world record of 58.2 seconds and the American record of 57.8 seconds he established three years ago but which was never accepted as a world standard.

Willie Hoppe in Eleventh Victory

But Tiff Denton's Run of 17 Points Is Highlight Of Night's Play

Chicago —(P)—Willie Hoppe, the "bad man" of championship billiards, still is a fugitive from defeat.

The star-studded field of contenders for the world's three cushion championship have only 10 more days to catch the imperturbable Hoppe, veteran cue wizard who has held all the billiard titles.

He scored his eleventh consecutive victory last night. His victim was Joe Chamaco, temperamental Mexican, who was beaten 50-49. But even Hoppe's superlative form was overshadowed somewhat by Tiff Denton's feat of running 17 points to equal the world's tournament record.

Even this fine work didn't save Denton from defeat. Jay Bozeman of Vallejo, Calif., finished strong to whip the 58-year-old Kansas City star, 50 to 44.

Otto Reisel of Philadelphia defeated Arthur Rubin of New York, 50 to 28. Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo. defeated Jake Schaefer of Cleveland, 50 to 49; and Welker Cochran of San Francisco defeated Allen Hall of Chicago, 50 to 41.

Clark Hinkle to be Guest of Men's Club Of Episcopal Church

Waupaca — Clarke Hinkle, half-back with the Green Bay Packers, will be a guest of the Men's Club of St. Mark's Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon and evening. At 4:30 in the afternoon he is scheduled to talk with the boys of the community who are interested in football. In the evening Mr. Hinkle will talk to the fathers of the boys and their instructors regarding the sport which was included in the 1940 school budget.

For years the sport has been considered by the board of education and now with $700 reserved for the purchase of new equipment, next fall will see the beginning of football in this city. Another step was taken when Waupaca joined the Tricounty Football league and made up a schedule of games. That schedule is: Sept. 27, Manawa here; Oct. 4, at Marion; Oct. 11, open; Oct. 18, at Pulaski; Oct. 25, Kimberly here; Nov. 1, open; Nov. 11, Omro here.

The salary raise of Coach William Cullen was made in consideration of his increased responsibilities in handling the sport.

Dramatics Club Will Present Three Plays

Waupaca — The junior high dramatic club will present three plays April 12, each of one act, under the direction of Miss Beale Weisse. The plays will be given in the high school assembly, a matinee in the afternoon to take care of students, and in the evening for adults.

The plays are to be "A Proposal by Proxy," a burlesque of the courtship of Miles Standish given with a chorus; "A Midnight Fantasy," which tells the story of how two portraits come to life at midnight; and "Elmer," the humorous tale of a boy who tries to help his sister.

Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

END OF THE HAM

If you've had baked ham for your Sunday dinner and that part which furnishes the big, regular slices has given out, you are probably wondering how you may utilize the remainder of it. The end of the ham may prove a mine of wealth to the menu planner who knows how to use it to the best advantage. There are really almost numberless ways in which this savory, flavoresome food can be used.

An excellent way to use up cooked ham is in a soufflé. Ham croquettes belong to that class of plus savories where work is substituted for cost in producing a really delicious main course. For lunch or supper try this delicious combination of ham and noodles.

All these recipes are so varied and different that I assure you no one need tire of concoctions made possible by the possession of a big bowl of chopped ham on hand, upon which to draw from time to time.

Ham Soufflé
2 tablespoons 1 egg
butter 2 cups ground
2 tablespoons cooked ham
flour 1 teaspoon
2 cups milk paprika
1 cup soft bread minced onion
crumbs (if desired)

Melt the butter, add flour and when well mixed add the milk gradually. Cook until thick. Add the bread crumbs, ham, paprika and the minced onion if desired. Add beaten egg yolks. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degree F. for 30 to 40 minutes.

Ham Croquettes
4 tablespoons 1 egg
butter 1 tablespoon
1-3 cup flour 1 water
1 cup hot milk Fine dry bread
1 cup cold cook- crumbs
ed chopped ham

Melt the butter in a saucepan. Remove from fire and mix with flour. Cook until it bubbles, then add hot milk slowly, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Add minced ham. Cool and shape into rolls or cones. Beat egg slightly, add water. Roll croquettes in fine dry bread crumbs, dip in beaten egg and roll in crumbs again. Let stand one half hour or longer, then fry in deep fat until brown. Serve with mayonnaise or tartar sauce.

Ham and Noodles
1 1/2 cups cooked 4 tablespoons ground ham flour
1 1/2 cups cooked 1 cup milk
noodles Salt and pepper
3 tablespoons 1 can tomato butter soup

Melt the butter, add flour and mix thoroughly. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until the mixture thickens. Add seasonings, ham and noodles. Pour mixture into a buttered loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. 1 hour. While this is baking open a can of tomato soup. When ready to serve invert the loaf on a large platter and pour the hot tomato soup over it. Serve buttered peas around the loaf.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Conscience is simply that cluster of moral habits which makes us human beings instead of wolves or Nietzsche. Include in your conscience the habit of regularly paying rent to the great Landlord who gives us such a happy lease on life. But remember the parable of the talents: We are supposed to return a worthy interest rate for our use of these bounties.

CASE Q-120: Serge R., aged 37, is a famous eye surgeon.

"It must make you feel good to know you are such a great surgeon and do so much good," a grateful patient remarked, after the removal of a cataract had restored her sight.

"Yes, I do feel good to know you and other patients can see. But you must not give me all the credit."

"For perhaps 30 minutes I operate on your eye. But you wear a bandage for a week thereafter, while God is healing the incision and repairing the wound.

"My part of the process requires but half an hour, but the complete cure may take weeks. I do nothing thereafter but take an occasional look at the eye as it heals. When you pay a doctor's bill, therefore, remember the Great Physician who always does most of the work."

DIAGNOSIS:

I wish to cite this case today as a good follow-up for yesterday's problem. Too often we grow cocky and conceited in our modern age of motor cars and radios, airplanes and scientific medicine.

We manufacture millions of electric refrigerators by which to chill a few cubic feet of air in millions of kitchens or pantries, but a sudden veering of the wind may bring freezing temperatures over an entire continent within a few hours.

We stand in awe before the Empire State building in New York City, but an earthquake could quickly do to New York City what it did to San Francisco.

Even in the field of medicine, we only discover basic principles of health which have always been true, but have simply been waiting for some intellectual explorer to stumble upon.

We can remove foreign bodies or inflamed appendices, but what makes the incision heal? We physicians cannot make anything heal. We simply help remove the tumors or cataracts, or surround the body with an environment of heat or oxygen which enables it more successfully to fight the invading syphilis or pneumonia germs, but we don't kill the germs.

Who does make you get well? It must be the Great Architect who designed such a wonderful body that it could meet all kinds of bacteria every day with reasonable impunity.

Doctors Aren't Jealous
The average physician knows that instead of being chief consultant or head surgeon on your case, he is only an assistant to the Great Physician.

And we aren't jealous, for the more we know about the human

Avoid 'Free' Finesse by Bid Analysis

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Few plays can make a defender feel as foolish as those that present declarer with the gift of a "free" finesse. At times, particularly when making a blind opening lead, it is difficult to avoid this horror; on most occasions, however, careful attention to the bidding will save the day. There was no excuse whatever for West in today's hand.

The bidding:

East South West North

Pass 4 spades Pass Pass

West was tempted to double the four spade bid on his two defensive tricks, but restrained himself with the thought that South must have quite a freak to be able to bid it.

West opened the king of diamonds and East naturally followed suit with the deuce, since from his angle there was no possible reason for a diamond continuation. West, eager to follow orders but without the wit to figure out the proper shift to make, now led his top heart.

Declarer chuckled as he put up dummy's queen and ruffed poor East's ace with the three of trumps. The king and a low spade put dummy on the lead for the cashing of the heart king, upon which declarer discarded a losing club. South returned to his hand by ruffing a heart, with an honor, drew the remaining trumps, and then conceded one diamond and one club.

Altho West could not be sure that the declarer was out of hearts, there was no earthly reason to lead a heart while dummy retained the spade ace entry.

We have seen what happened when South ruffed the heart lead. Now let us suppose that East had a five card suit and that South had a heart instead of one of his losing clubs. The same catastrophe would have ensued from West's shortsightedness. Dummy's heart trick would have been established before declarer's club ace was knocked out and, even the declarer followed to the first heart play, he would then not have to lose any club trick whatever.

Obviously, West should have shifted to a club, not to a heart, for there would have been no earthly way for declarer to have avoided the loss of two diamond and two club tricks.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

So much is written for the young, especially if you are a devotee of a cream rouge.

Which Masque Do You Use

For ages past women have resorted to masques to firm their facial muscles and to keep the pores from becoming enlarged. Today a masque is as essential in any skin care, as in Cleopatra's time. Women who have the beauty of their skin at heart, should use a masque every ten days, or every two weeks. If you have professional skin care at a salon, you may have a masque used as frequently as every week. But do not allow your face muscles to depend too greatly on this firming aid. Exercise it, and be conscious of lifting the tiny muscles when you smile, and keep them lifted as you go about your regular duties. If you allow them to droop, they will droop badly, and no masque will be able to lift them to pleasing, youthful lines.

Your Neck and Back
The majority of women have been schooled in keeping their throats well cared for but many, many pay no attention to their upper shoulders and back. Their upper shoulders should be creamed and firmed along with the face skin, and their backs should be scrubbed well with a bath brush and creamed at least twice a week. This section collects more grime than you imagine, and it perspires freely too. Thus only meticulous care will keep it from becoming blemished.

Miss Lindsay is happy to advise on which soaps are bland, and which creams are efficacious. Write her in care of the Post-Crescent and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to cover mailing costs.

Keep Skin Free of Lines
Some skins at forty-plus have excellent texture. They have either been well cared for during the past ten years, or the owner has been blessed with very good health and few tribulations. Most women past forty require a rich lubricating cream to banish lines, or to prevent them from appearing. Such a cream is massaged in at night, or may be used after every soap washing, and before applying make-up.

Of course, if you have been fortunate to find the perfect make-up foundation formula, then by all means use it. Otherwise, a little lubricating cream massaged into the skin thoroughly, serves admirably.

Cultivation of Character

Lives in Future Generations

BY ANGELO PATRI

Matthew was fidgeting about the room, something unusual for him and finally I asked him what was bothering him.

"I'm not bothered. I'm trying to find out something. What's the most important thing about me?"

"I don't understand."

"I mean, what's the most important thing about me,—you know—if I knew that I could kinda keep an eye on it and see to it. Is it my lessons, my religion, or what?"

"I think that the most important thing about you is the fact that you will be the father of children by and by. Anything that tends toward making you a better father would be extremely important."

"Fathers earn our living, work hard, and boss the children when their mothers can't make them mind. I could do that, Easy."

"That's not what I mean exactly. It's only a little bit of it. Your son or daughter will be part of you. A little pinch of you that has in it all your character, your good points and your bad ones, all your strengths and all your weaknesses—all you are in every respect—even in the ones people never know—that goes into the making of your child."

SENT BROADCAST
As I write these words, I have beside me a book which was printed in 1918. The volume is called "Radio Telephony," and was written by Prof. Alfred Goldsmith of the College of the City of New York.

Nellie Melba in 1920, ready to broadcast a song. Note the odd-looking microphone.

Professor Goldsmith spoke of early tests, and stated that Fessenden, by wireless, had sent the human voice a distance of one mile at the beginning of the present century.

In the opening pages of his book, Goldsmith tried to defend the radio. He said it would be useful for people to talk from one ocean vessel to another, and from one railway train to another. He seems to have feared that telephone companies would try to keep the new art from spreading.

Lee De Forest ranks high among the pioneers of radio. Soon after obtaining his Ph. D. degree from Yale, he entered the wireless field and his quick brain brought forth several inventions. In 1901 we find him placing wireless "detectors" on housetops in Chicago. They were metal barrel hoops joined by antenna wires.

Six years later De Forest made tests in New York City. A wireless telephone broadcast was sent out from one building and was heard in another building three blocks away.

Soon after that, two warships of the United States navy were fitted with wireless telephones of the De Forest type.

In the summer of 1908 De Forest went to Europe to prove his system of wireless telephony. Going to the top of Eiffel tower in Paris, he sent out a phonograph record program. This broadcast was heard in stations from 20 to 25 miles from the tower.

Back in New York, De Forest arranged to have Caruso and others sing on a program. We are told that "perhaps 50 persons" heard the program.

Meanwhile Fessenden and others were working ahead of their radio plans. Before the outbreak of the World war, ways were found to bring about better sending and receiving programs. The radio art however, did not "blossom" until after the close of the war.

Prices of Wheat Lose Ground on Chicago Market

Values Depressed by Prospects of Moisture in Southwest

Chicago.—Wheat prices lost as much as 12 cents a bushel at times today, depressed by prospects of moisture in the southwest. Opening quotations were only fractionally lower, but in the closing hour May contracts dropped to $1.05 1/2, off 1/2 cents, and July to $1.03 1/2. Pressure attributed to the northwest, apparently hedging against purchases of loan wheat, also depressed the market. Receipts were: wheat four cars, corn 50, oats 17.

Wheat closed 1-1/2 lower, May $1.05 1/2, July $1.04 1/2, corn unchanged to 1/2 lower, May 56 1/2, July 57 1/2; oats 1-1/2 lower.

U. S. Steel Directors

Vote Dividend of $1

New York.—Directors of U. S. Steel Corporation Tuesday declared a dividend of $1 a share on common stock, payable April 26 to holders of record April 5.

The dividend, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chairman, said was based on the corporation's earnings in recent months.

The last dividend on the common stock paid by the corporation was $1 a share on Dec. 20, 1937.

The disbursement of approximately $8,700,000 to common stockholders at this time was seen in Wall street as indicating that the conservative board of directors took a hopeful view of prospects for the steel industry despite the fact that steel production has declined substantially since last autumn.

With one exception, this is the first time that a dividend has been declared on the common stock at a meeting other than the regular quarterly assemblies of the directors.

Johnson Lauds New Policy of Selling Best Planes to Allies

Editor's Note: During Westbrook Pegler's vacation, the daily column by Hugh S. Johnson will be substituted in the Post-Crescent.

Washington, D. C.—The policy of the president to permit the Allies to buy our most advanced type of military and naval planes is one hundred percent correct. A principal problem in our preparation for defense is productive capacity. Time is "of the essence" in war. Napoleon used to say: "I may lose a battle but I will never lose a minute—and hence few wars." We have the best industrial plant in the world. But in our modern system of manufacture, the best plant in the world can't get into production without first going through a slow and complicated effort called "tooling-up."

This means the arrangement of buildings and machine tools to provide a continuous flow from one operation to another without back-tracking or lost motion. It means the making of the working points of those tools to insure absolute uniformity in all the thousands of separate parts that go into the assembly of any such complex and wonderful thing as a modern war plane. It means the making of patterns and gauges to insure accuracy beyond the split fraction of a mouse hair—microscopic accuracy in some cases.

This requires the highest mechanical skill that is demanded of any workmen. The scarcity, due to the depression, of sufficiently skilled pattern and tool-makers is one of the great "bottle-necks" retarding production. Once the original tooling is done fewer of those experts are needed.

Everybody who is old enough will remember that preparation to build the radically different successor to the old Model T tin lizzie, paralyzed the production of even the great Ford plants for the better part of two years. It is believed in the motor industry that a single last minute change in arrangement and design cost the Ford company millions of dollars and months of time. When this great preparation work is done, increase in speed and reduction in cost are very great.

Mass Production Is Essential For Defense

To put the American airplane industry on this kind of mass production basis would give us something that hasn't existed and, under conservative plans for our own equipment, might never have been completely attained. But a billion dollars worth of Allies business coupled with our own requirements, on basic designs identical with our own, will do exactly that. This result of giving the Allies our most advanced designs is the most fortunate thing that could happen to us from the angle of our own defense.

As for "military secrets," we have some gadgets that lead the world for example, our pursuit plane super-charger that has increased speed of one model by 40 miles an hour. But how long will they remain secret? As the automotive industry learned long ago about standard equipment in common use, constantly superior research and invention are the only dependable methods of beating competition and neither secrecy nor even patent protection will serve.

For undiscussable reasons, our marvellously accurate bomb-sight is in a slightly different class but, as to standard plane and engine types, we would be short-sighted not to give the Allies the best we have for quantity production, even if it somewhat delays our own program. If war threatens us, we will take all this newly developed factory capacity for our own use, exactly as we did in 1917. The president's policy will speed our essential production, put us in the vanguard of invention and design and very greatly lower our costs.

Lawyers of United States Vote Against Third Term in Survey

By Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—If you happen to ask your lawyer for political advice this fall in case President Roosevelt runs for a third term, the chances today are that he will probably tell you to vote Republican.

A survey conducted among a cross-section of the law profession, as listed in standard legal directories, shows that lawyers themselves are predominantly against a third term for that other well-known member of the bar, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Asked in the Institute survey, "If President Roosevelt runs for a third term will you vote for him?" U. S. lawyers divide as follows:

For 3rd term 29%
Against 71%

In taking their stand against a third term, the lawyers joined ranks with another special stratum of American voters, namely persons away. He's been suspicious ever since he asked me about Joan's note. I couldn't tell him. He'd spread it all over the front page of the papers." His voice rose hysterically. "And now he's trying to prove I took a later train last night."

Dirck rose and went around to him. "Take it easy," he cautioned. "You'll waken someone."

Richard didn't seem to hear him. "Even if it wouldn't get in the papers I couldn't tell him and have Mother and Uncle Nick know. They think I'm a weakling anyway. Joan has always been the favorite with everyone except Dad, and even he worships her."

Suddenly he straightened up and his eyes fastened on mine. "If you remember the note the Sergeant mentioned—Joan's note—letter, rather, to Tim—" He seemed to be confused and the words tumbled out of his mouth so spasmodically that I had a hard time following him. "She said she was worried about me. Well, she was."

He got up and poured himself some brandy. "You see, I bought a lot of stock on margin and it dropped. Uncle Nick helped me out once, and then I got in another mess and had to have more money. But I hated to go to him again. He couldn't understand that sort of thing, although the time I asked him he was very generous about it."

He put the glass on the coffee table and wiped his forehead nervously with his handkerchief. "I couldn't tell Mother," he went on, "and Dad hasn't a cent, so I had to ask Joan. She didn't have much money and it worried her terribly. The poor kid. She had so much on her mind. Everyone's troubles besides her own. And that red-headed girl up in the front apartment was deviling her."

He stopped talking suddenly and Dirck and I looked at each other. "I was disappointed in Lathrop's story," Dirck said. "Somehow I thought he'd know more than he did."

Richard turned on him. "Don't drag Tim into this. He didn't do it. He worshipped Joan."

"I realize that," Dirck said soothingly. "And Richard, apparently mollified, rose to go."

"Sure you don't want to stay down here?" Dirck said.

Richard shook his head. "No, I'll go along up."
